NAZIS THROW AIR TROOPS INTO BATTLE

Navy Air Arm Smashes Ten Jap Ships in New Guinea

DIVE BOMBERS SMASH LARGE ENEMY FORCE

Planes Strike Suddenly on March 10 as Japs Gather Fleet of Ships.

By The Associated Press

ABOARD A WARSHIP WITH THE U. S. PACIFIC FLEET—(Delayed)—The powerful air-arm of the United States fleet on March 10 struck a paralyzing blow against Japanese forces attempting to establish bases in New Guinea.

Striking within 48 hours after the announcement of the enemy's movement against the undefended ports of Salamaua and Lae, aircraft descended in a lightning strike upon Japanese warships, transports and auxiliary vessels.

Taken completely by surprise in the act of consolidating their positions, the ships attempted frantically to scatter.

But as one high officer's report said, "all except unimportant units were sought out and visited with sudden and very unpleasant attention."

10 Ships Sunk

The box score of the Japanese losses at the two points—Salamaua and Lae—showed that at least 10 ships were sunk or crippled and five others severely damaged.

(This action was described in one part in navy communique No. 57 issued at Washington on March 18.)

Two cruisers were destroyed, five transports—one of 15,000 tons and two others of 10,000 tons—sunk, beached or left blazing; one destroyer was blown up by heavy bombs, another sunk and others damaged by smaller bombs and strafed by machine gun fire.

One auxiliary was listing heavily and left sinking and one seaplane was destroyed by our fighters. Many small boats and barges were damaged or sunk. Losses were high among Japanese navy personnel. One of the transports sunk off Lae was seen to have many men aboard.

The only loss to the U. S. force was one scout plane shot down by anti-aircraft fire.

It was a bold and successful stroke—first by the U. S. fleet in this area—which definitely delayed the Japanese southward drive.

Salamaua, only about 430 miles from the northeastern Australian mainland, is an important point from which raids could be made against Australia as well as against the Australian stronghold of Port Moresby on the southern coast of New Guinea. The U. S. has now thrown its naval strength directly into the "hot corner" of the Pacific war. The American aviators encountered no air opposition, for apparently the Japs had become so overconfident that they had withdrawn air support for the invasion forces.

As one young U. S. flier told me:

"It was a cinch, a dive-bomber's field day. The Jap ships were going crazy down there trying to get away, but we nailed them and how!"

Life Termer Returned to London Prison Farm

By The Associated Press

LONDON, O., May 23—Harry "Pete" Zenz, 41, Cincinnati bank robber, is back in London prison farm today—the last to be returned of six convicts who made a sensational escape in July, 1938.

Zenz was returned from the Texas state prison farm where he had served two years of a 10-year sentence for burglary. He was granted a conditional pardon for good behavior by Gov. Coke R. Stevenson of Texas so that he could be returned to London to resume serving a life term for bank robbery.

Zenz was convicted of complicity in attempting to rob the Reading bank at Reading, a Cincinnati suburb, June 21, 1930.

Gallup Poll of Opinion To Be Regular Feature of Star Starting June 1

BEGINNING Monday, June 1 The Star will expand its coverage of national news by offering readers the complete news reports of the American Institute of Public Opinion, known from coast to coast as the Gallup Poll.

In Marion results will appear each Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday. In its election to membership in the Institute, The Star takes its place with more than 100 leading American newspapers which have combined to make possible one of the most important developments in journalism in recent years.

Newspapers have long ago achieved a thorough and systematic method of reporting what men and nations do—and now the scientific surveys of the American Institute of Public Opinion make it possible for some of them to report what the men and women of this nation think, on politics and economics, on the headline issues of the day, and on the everyday questions of American life.

Throughout the Presidential campaign, for instance, the Institute reported successive state-by-state tests of Roosevelt-Willkie sentiment, measured the reactions of U. S. voters to the issues of the campaign, and correctly forecast the election with an average state-by-state error of 2½ per cent.

Moreover, the modern sampling technique recently demonstrated its ability on issues of the day as well as on candidates in an election. On the Canadian plebiscite, the Canadian Institute of Public Opinion, — the Gallup Poll of Canada—was able to predict the outcome of nationwide election within 3.5 percent of absolute accuracy.

THE American Institute of Public Opinion won nationwide attention during the 1936 Presidential campaign when it forecast the landslide reelection of Franklin D. Roosevelt. The Institute reported that only three states—Maine, Vermont and New Hampshire—could be considered "safe" for Gov. Landon.

Unlike the familiar "straw vote," the American Institute of Public Opinion conducts its nationwide surveys by means of "scientific sampling," using a national staff of more than 1,000 field representatives geared to reach a carefully selected cross-section of the voters in each state.

Thus, while old-fashioned "mass straw votes" were collecting the returns from one tremendous but technically faulty sendout, the new scientific surveys were able to conduct a complete series of rapid, accurate checkups on what the American people were thinking.

The Gallup Poll methods are now being employed in four other democracies besides the United States. Besides the American Institute of Public Opinion, there are the British Institute of Public opinion, the Canadian, the Australian, and the Swedish Institutes of Public Opinion, all affiliates of the American Gallup Poll, and all using the methods developed by Dr. George Gallup, director of the Institute in the United States. Although the British and American Institutes were functioning before the war, the others all came into being after the start of the world conflict now raging. The Canadian and Australian Institutes were formed in 1941, while the Swedish Poll began its work only a few months ago.

ALTHOUGH each newspaper publishing the results of the public opinion surveys will have its own particular policy on political questions and other issues of the day, all of the supporting newspapers recognize that the facts about public opinion must be measured and reported faithfully, completely and impartially.

Thus, in every survey of the American Institute of Public Opinion the objective is honest fact-finding, regardless of the political preferences or editorial policies of the papers concerned.

An additional guarantee of the Institute's impartiality is the fact that the 100 newspapers include

HEAVY PENALTY FOR TIRE THEFT

Man Sentenced to 3 Months' Imprisonment and Fined $500 for One Tire.

A sentence of three months' imprisonment and a fine of $500 and costs for the theft of an automobile tire was the unusually heavy penalty given out in the Marion municipal court today.

Penalty was given when John H. Bunner, 27 of London, O., pleaded guilty before Municipal Judge W. D. Hazen to a charge of stealing a tire and wheel Wednesday from a car owned by H. C. Lautenslager.

Judge Hazen, explaining that he was sentenced on a charge of removing a part from an automobile, said no tire thief would be lightly dealt with in his court. He said by such a theft, a man, whose job depended on the use of his car, might be deprived of employment.

Bunner was arrested Wednesday morning on North Main street by Patrolman Underhill. Police Chief William E. Marks said Bunner was attempting to dispose of the rim of the stolen wheel when apprehended.

Other tire theft cases have previously brought heavy penalties in the municipal court, but none as severe as the sentence and fine ordered today. This, Judge Hazen explained, was because in the other cases the accused men were charged under laws applicable to theft of tires that were not on a motor vehicle. Under the statute used in prosecuting Bunner, specifying theft of a tire from a vehicle, the prescribed penalty is greater, he said.

DAMAGE HIGH AS FLOOD HITS EASTERN AREA

Steel Mill Closes, Property and Life Loss Reaches High Figure.

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, May 23—Streams swollen by recent rains rampaged through eastern Pennsylvania today, causing millions of dollars damage, loss of life, and compelling the vast war material producing plant of the Bethlehem Steel Corp. at Bethlehem to suspend operations temporarily.

Two women died of heart attacks.

In the borough of Honesdale, isolated with transportation and communications cut, residents reported houses collapsed and at least six persons missing, possibly drowned.

The Lehigh river at Bethlehem overflowed and disabled the power plant of the sprawling four-mile long Bethlehem steel plant, navy inspectors stationed there by the government, said.

How soon operations could be restored to normal was a matter of conjecture. City officials called an emergency meeting to plan "all aid possible" to the management.

Honesdale Hit Hard

At Honesdale, the Lackawaxen river fed by recent rains, burst through the Seeleyville dam three miles above this northeastern Pennsylvania community and sent a six-foot wall of water rushing through the streets just before daybreak.

Telephone company officials reported several houses were toppled over by the flood and it was believed those missing were

MARION BOND SALES AHEAD OF SCHEDULE

Reports List Figures for Other Counties in Area.

Marion county war bond sales during the first half of May rose well past the half-way mark for the month's quota, it was announced today in a report of state sales issued by the war savings staff in Cleveland.

The county's quota for May is $131,900; at the half-month period ended May 15 sales totaled $69,460.25.

The report indicated 24 counties in the state were already "over the top" in their campaign by the middle of the month. Hardin and Morrow counties ranked among those on the honor list.

Darke and Vinton were outstanding among the state's smaller counties, both having nearly doubled their quotas during the first two weeks. Of the larger counties with over a $1,000,000 quota, Lucas is outstanding in that it is the only one which has gone over the top to date.

Total state quota for May is $31,768,700; sales for the 15-day period amounted to $17,299,642, or 54.5 per cent of the total.

Sales for the period in counties surrounding Marion were as follows: Crawford, $92,754; Delaware, $53,152.70; Hardin, $100,469; Morrow, $22,768; Union, $14,049 and Wyandot, $35,060.

Commenting on the wholehearted support being given the war bond purchase program, Roy D. Moore, state administrator of the War Savings Staff, said: "The results to date show Ohio is keenly aware of its responsibility in this great crisis.

"With the setting up of a definite sale quota each month, we know what is expected of us as patriotic citizens in the war effort. We Ohioans will [illegible] challenge to our [illegible] men on the [illegible]

11-Year-Old Boy On the Alert, Aids in Stopping Fire

An 11-year-old boy's cool alertness aided firemen in checking a blaze this morning before much damage was done.

He is Billy Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Williams of 242 Olney avenue.

Returning home for breakfast from his paper route about 8:25 a. m. today when he saw flames coming from a garage at the rear of the Vergil Garver residence at 198 Olney avenue. He ran to the nearest fire box at West Church and Garden streets and turned in the alarm. He then waited calmly until firemen from Central and West Side stations arrived and directed them to the right address.

Firemen said only rubbish in the garage was ignited.

Billy, a fourth-grade pupil at Olney avenue school, said he was only carrying out instructions his teacher had given him in case of fire.

CHINESE DRIVE OUT JAP FORCE

More Than Half of One Force Killed and 25,000 Repulsed at Foochow.

By The Associated Press

Chinese headquarters reported today that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's armies had slaughtered more than half of a sea-borne Japanese invasion force at one point on China's east coast and repulsed 25,000 other enemy troops attempting to land under the guns of 10 warships near Foochow, capital of Fukien province.

Survivors of the first Japanese force, who gained a foothold Wednesday on Chuanshih island at the mouth of the Min river in Fukien province, were said to have fled to their ships, abandoning huge quantities of equipment.

While the threat to Foochow appeared to have been diminished, other Japanese columns driving into neighboring Chekiang province were reported advancing rapidly on Kinhwa, the provisional capital of Chekiang province and gateway to China's interior.

Make Rapid Advance

Chinese dispatches acknowledged the invaders were attacking Iwu, 32 miles northeast of Kinhwa, after a 15-mile advance in 24 hours. A Tokyo broadcast said the Japanese had captured Iwu and advanced seven miles further south, flanking Kinhwa on the east.

On other fronts in the Far Pacific, land fighting appeared dormant but allied warplanes kept up relentless attacks against Japanese bases in Burma and in the fringe of islands above Australia.

In Burma, RAF bombers struck anew at Japanese-held Akyab airdrome, potential base for an invasion of India, and attacked Japanese river craft nearby.

Allied bombers have knocked two more Japanese ships out of the enemy's potential invasion forces gathering above Australia and have pared his air strength by another 13 planes, General MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

Both ships were in the principal Japanese invasion bases among the islands north of Australia—a large transport at Rabaul, New Britain, reportedly was "left in a crippled condition" and a tanker at Lae, New Guinea, was "severely damaged."

The Japanese offered only feeble resistance to these new air smashes. Eight Japanese fighter planes rose to challenge the raiders at Lae, the communique said, but five were shot down and "all our planes returned safely."

All Planes Return

Two enemy bombers were destroyed aground on the Lae airdrome, and at Rabaul, the communique said, six heavy Japanese bombers were badly damaged.

10 Marion Co. Legionnaires Become Auxiliary to State Highway Patrol

End 16-Week Course To Prepare for Emergency Service with Patrol; To Take Further Training.

The first Marion county class to complete the state highway patrol auxiliary training for American Legion members was graduated last night at a dinner meeting in Hotel Harding attended by Lt. S. D. Augenstein, commanding officer of the Findlay district headquarters of the state patrol. It was the sixth class to complete the course in the Findlay district.

The 10 men who completed the course received identification cards, certificates, arm bands and windshield stickers bearing the insignia of their branch of the Civilian Defense program, a red shield within a white triangle imposed on a blue disc.

Members of the class are J. E. Dutton and J. L. Meredith of the LaRue post, Fred P. Haas and Henry Wade of the Caledonia post and W. L. Arndt, W. E. Axthelm, H. F. Baldauf, W. F. Behner, Don Davis and Roy H. Waddell of Bird-McGinnis Post No. 162, American Legion. Mr. Davis, who is ill, could not be present last night.

The men will go to the Marion sub-station for supplementary training in the working and organization of the station, and to the Findlay headquarters station for training in communications work.

The supplementary training will fit them to man the stations if the regular highway patrol force should be called to any emergency service. They also will ride with the patrolmen on regular cruises over the area covered by the Marion sub-station.

The 16-week course which the men completed covered the organization and operational plans of the state patrol, first aid, communications, regional geography, traffic regulations, dispatching of traffic, control of emergency passes, enforcing emergency regulations, evacuation from dangerous areas, safeguarding from dangerous areas, protection of criminal evidence, control of looting and assaults, policing fire lines, control of mobs and crowds, evacuation of public assembly, enforcing of blackout regulations, self-defense, safeguard from weapons and ammunition, and surveillance and observation.

The course was taught by Corp. E. H. Davey of the Marion substation. In appreciation of his services the class presented him with war stamps.

Commander E. M. Breithaupt of Bird-McGinnis Post was a guest. Lieutenant Augenstein in a brief talk to the group stressed the urgent need for more trained Legion men in Marion county, one of the state's major defense areas, and expressed the hope that there would be a large turnout of Legion men from over Marion county Tuesday night at 8 in the Legion Dugout when an effort will be made to organize a second class.

SOVIETS ADMIT REVERSES IN KHARKOV AREA

Moscow Reports Nazis Gain on Southern Flank but Say 15,000 Killed.

By The Associated Press

German Field Marshal Fedor Von Bock was reported throwing masses of air-borne troops into the bloody 12-day battle of Kharkov today, and for the first time the Russians acknowledged reverses on the southern flank despite a toll of 15,000 Germans killed there in three days.

A bulletin from Adolf Hitler's field headquarters made the familiar claim that the Russian mass attacks on Kharkov, the Soviet "Pittsburgh," had collapsed completely.

Meanwhile, DNB, official German news agency, reported that a powerful French naval formation was roving the western Mediterranean.

DNB said a British destroyer which left Gibraltar yesterday afternoon sighted the formation — a battleship, two cruisers and six destroyers — and put back into port.

Such a force might have come from the French Mediterranean port of Toulon.

Claims Conflict

Conflicting claims marked the battle of Kharkov, with the Russians insisting they still held the initiative.

The Nazi command said the Russian offensive started May 12 with 20 infantry divisions (perhaps 300,000 troops), three cavalry divisions and tank brigades.

"Suffering the heaviest blow and material losses, the enemy was completely broken up," the communique said.

"The German counterattack, which started May 13, led into the rear of the strongest enemy group and has cut through this line of supplies."

"For two days now, German, Rumanian and Hungarian troops, backed by strong formations of the German air force, have been making counterattacks on the whole front of the hitherto defensive battle."

Berlin military quarters said the battle now was assuming "gigantic proportions" and declared that Von Bock's armies had shifted from the defensive.

"New extensive German operations are in progress," these quarters said.

Report Unconfirmed

Without confirmation elsewhere, a Vichy broadcast said a powerful German counterattack had thrown Russian troops back to their original positions on the Kharkov front.

British dispatches reported the Germans also were smashing heavily along the Taganrog-Rostov railway in a drive apparently aimed at recapture of Rostov-On-Don, northern gateway to the Caucasus oil fields.

Soviet reports said Nazi parachute troops and plane-transported infantry descending on the vast Kharkov battlefield were being wiped out "as fast as they land."

Red Star, Russian army newspaper, said a see-saw battle was raging 80 miles below Kharkov, in the Izyum-Barvenkova sector, with the Germans scoring "alternate successes" as they sent huge forces into synchronized attacks at several points.

The Russians, however, declared their defenses still were solid.

Dispatches to Red Star said the Germans hurled three waves of tanks into a narrow sector on the

CONFEREES SET $48 AS SERVICE BASE PAY

House and Senate Members Agree on Figure.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 23 — A senate-house conference committee agreed today on a general pay increase measure for men in the lower ranks of the armed services to a minimum of $48 monthly.

This tentatively rejected house attempts to raise the minimum pay of buck privates and sailors to $50 monthly, from present minimums of $21 and $30.

Senator Johnson (D-Colo), one of the [illegible] conferees, said the pay raise as agreed to by conferees would cost the government about $285,[illegible] additional each year based upon the number of men in the army, navy, marines and other armed forces on Jan. 1.

I John 4:1-3—"Beloved, believe not every spirit: but try the spirits whether they are of God: because many false prophets are gone out into the world. Hereby know ye the spirit of God: every spirit that confesseth that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is of God: and every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is not of God: and this is that spirit of anti-Christ, whereof ye have heard that it should come: and even now already it is in the world."

CHRISTIANITY is a religion, but no other religion is Christianity. Jesus Christ was the founder and is the present director of Christianity over which He exercises absolute control through Holy Spirit. No human may lay claim to being a Christian until he or she has been "born-again" (John 3:3 and 7) from above by the regenerating power of Holy Spirit (Titus 3:5). God acting in grace does instantly cause us to be eternally identified with His Son Jesus Christ in whom He finds us acceptable (Eph. 1:6). So literal is His process that the scriptures inform us in

(Eph. 5:30)
We become members of His body, of His flesh, of His bones.

Our inspired Bible (II Tim. 3:16) (II Peter 1:19-21) is a reliable source of spiritual information and contains the truth with regard to eternal realities. Some will say, "But how do I know it is true?" May we call your attention to two irrefutable passages of scripture:

(II Cor. 5:19)
God was in Christ reconciling the world unto Himself.

Ascension day certainly proves His right to teach that truth along with

(John 8:23)
Ye are from beneath: I am from above: Ye are of this world; I am not of this world.

In the light of such overwhelming evidence we invite you to consider

(John 7:16)
My doctrine is not Mine, but His that sent Me.

To this preacher the Bible is a supernatural book, written by a supernatural God, able to perform supernatural works by virtue of His supernatural power. Do we not read

(John 6:63)
It is the spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing; The words that I speak unto you they are the spirit, they are life.)

He established the Bible to be His authoritative word, therefore we would expect the efforts of antichrist to be directed toward discrediting or altering the program as presented in the Holy Scriptures. Antichrist would whisper, it will not matter if you change the method to fit the day inasmuch as the Bible is a horse-and-buggy book. God instructs mankind to stand on God's promise if man would experience God's blessing. Satan is operating wilily (Eph. 6:11) through the channels of philosophy and science in an effort to poison the minds of men and women, causing them to question the supernatural origin, resurrection, ascension and glorious coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, who will yet reign as king over all earth. Holy Spirit speaks very plain to members of that philosophical school.

(I John 2:22)
Who is a liar but that he denieth that Jesus is the Christ? He is antichrist, that denieth the Father and the Son.

Teachers of that variety are popular but so dangerous that Holy Spirit saw fit to speak to the children with the words of warning found in

(II John 7-11)
Many deceivers are entered into the world, who confess not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh. This is a deceiver and an antichrist. Look to yourselves—if there come any unto you and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into your house, neither bid him godspeed; for he that biddeth him godspeed is a partaker of his evil deeds.

We call your attention to the warning of God as recorded in

(John 12:48)
He that rejecteth Me, and receiveth not My words hath One that judgeth him; the word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day.

Christian friend, what excuse will you offer for walking contrary to the light of God's word? Sinner friend, what will be your answer to the just God who has forewarned you in

(Acts 4:12)
There is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved.

What is your answer to

(Heb. 2:3)
How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?

CHAPTER TEN

Blow For Kathleen

NEITHER spoke for a little while after that. They looked at the countryside, and were lost in thought. Only Fred did most of the looking, when he didn't have to pay too much attention to his driving; Kathleen did more thinking than looking. While Fred admired the blue of the sky, the green of the foliage, and the way a small calf awkwardly kicked up its heels, Kathleen was trying to think of a way to bring up the subject of her acting.

There was no need putting it off, she reasoned. The weeks would be gone almost before she knew it, and the theatrical people departing. And when a girl wanted to go places in any line of endeavor, that girl had to grasp every opportunity.

She drew a deep breath. "You remember what you said to me on Saturday night?" she asked.

Fred gave her a quick look. "I remember saying a lot of things to you," he replied, "and I meant 'em."

"I mean about my looking like one of the girls in 'Goodbye, Honey Chile!'" said Kathleen. "Remember?"

"Sure. You did look that way."

"Then if I do," Kathleen went on, gathering courage, "maybe you could do me a favor."

"Sure. What sort of favor?"

"It's about acting."

"Yes?"

"I have done some acting. Here in Linville, I mean."

"Yes, I know."

"You do? Who told you?"

"Mrs. Buxton," said Fred. "She gave you quite a boost last night when we were having a little visit in between dances."

"That was sweet of her," said Kathleen. "Only I hope she didn't bore you."

"Oh, no," said Fred. "I had an idea you'd taken an active part in home-town productions. You see, I've been around quite a bit, and I'm pretty well qualified to pick out the girls with acting ambitions in whatever town I visit."

"And you picked me out?"

Fred nodded slowly. "And I was rather sorry," he said.

Discouraged

"Sorry?" Kathleen was puzzled. "Why?"

"Because you're such a sweet girl as is," Fred answered. "I hated to feel that you wanted to become an actress—and leave all this." He made a gesture with one hand toward a field of corn. "If I had my life to live over again, I'd stay in a place like Linville. I did come from a small town, you know."

Kathleen was upset. She had expected almost any sort of reaction from Fred but this one. Joe discouraging her. Uncle Frank doing the same. And now—Fred.

"But suppose all girls who wanted to act stayed home," she said. "What would the world do for actresses?"

"Do without them," said Fred. "And that might not be a bad idea, at that." He smiled wryly. "I read the other day where a man said that he thought Hollywood ought to shoot fewer pictures and more actors. I agree with him—only I think also that there ought to be more wives and mothers, and fewer actresses."

"But why? You like the theater, don't you?"

"I suppose it's more or less in my blood now, after such a lot of time fooling around with it, but—" Fred stopped short. "Oh, yes, the favor you mentioned. I suppose it has something to do with your ambition to be an actress."

"It has," Kathleen admitted. "I—I was wondering if there weren't some small parts you could give me—you know, a bit the regular actors and actresses couldn't do."

Fred was thoughtful for a moment. "Yes," he said finally, "there are such parts. There are several in 'Goodbye, Honey Chile!'"

"Really?" Kathleen cried. "Oh, I'd love to be in that play!"

"You might fit in at that," Fred continued, "only I'm afraid I can't do much about it."

"But I thought you had a lot to say about casting."

"Only a rumor, my child. You see, Paul Pennell and Ruby Howard have invested in this summer theater venture — and they rule the roost. I mean, they have the definite say-so about who plays what, and so on."

"You mean I'd have to convince them that I could play a part?" said Kathleen.

"Yes. Especially Paul—since he's the heaviest investor."

Kathleen frowned. Here she was wasting her time riding around the country with Fred DeMille, because she had been confident he was the man who could help her—and he wasn't.

"Do you think I might be able to handle one of those small roles?" she asked presently.

"You might," said Fred. "Can't tell much until I hear you read lines."

"But how can I read lines if I don't get a role?" Kathleen said, a sort of wail in her voice.

"That," said Fred, "is what actresses have been saying down through the ages. "Of course," he added thoughtfully, "I might speak a word about the matter to Paul."

"Oh, would you do that? I'd be ever so grateful."

"Not that it would mean a lot," Fred went on. "Paul and I don't hit it off any too well together, and my suggestions are usually tossed into discard. However, in your case, he might lend a more willing ear."

Kathleen gazed dreamily before her.

"I'd give almost anything," she said softly, "to have a part in that Civil War play."

"Why don't you mention the matter to Paul, yourself?" said Fred.

"Do you think I should?"

"I don't see why not. You mentioned it to me, didn't you?"

"Yes." Kathleen turned and studied Fred's profile. "You don't think it terribly nervy of me, do you?"

"Certainly not," said Fred. "After all, one never gets places without trying."

"But you don't like the idea of my acting, do you?"

"No. I don't like the idea of any sweet, wholesome girl like you acting."

Kathleen tried to think of something to say, and couldn't.

Fred broke the silence that had fallen between them.

"How much farther to Miss Camilla's farm?" he asked.

"Not far," Kathleen answered. "You turn to the right down by that group of apple trees."

"Now for some genuine pre-war stuff," he said gaily. And then: "Kind of funny, isn't it, you wanting to act with Paul, and your friend Joe wanting to do a play for Ruby?"

"I don't see anything funny about it," said Kathleen crossly. "People can be ambitious even in a hick town."

"Joe doesn't waste any time, either," Fred went on. "I saw him driving off with Ruby just before I started to call for you."

"You did?" said Kathleen, trying to sound casual.

Tied Up in Port, Italy's Ships Still Menace To Allies

This story of Italy's naval position was written by the former chief of The Associated Press Home Bureau who has reached Lisbon, after five months of internment, enroute home.

* * *

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK

LISBON, May 24—Italy's navy, greatly weakened by two years of war, usually stays in port but still is a menace to the United Nations, naval experts say.

For United States shipping, Italian long-range submarines operating in the Atlantic from the German-occupied French coast, probably Bordeaux, are virtually the only threat. With Italian submarines operating with German craft their inroads on American and British shipping can be serious.

In more distant danger are British warships and convoys in the Mediterranean.

Italy's six battleships, with two more—the 35,000-ton Impero and a sister ship, the Roma—under construction, are tying up a big part of the fleet in the Mediterranean even though the Italian ships are rarely used.

Lack of fuel and shortage of materials for repairs immobilize the Italian fleet most of the time. The shortage of fuel also seriously restricts firing practice and crew training.

Italy's submarine strength is estimated at scarcely half of the approximate 115 underwater craft with which she started the war. Quite a few of the 40 ocean-going submarines have been lost.

A few submarines, probably less than five, are built each month with steel from Germany. German submarines, incidentally, also are operating in the Mediterranean while German specialists particularly gunners, are in the crews of most Italian ships.

Marion City BUSES

POSSIBLE BOOST IN FIRE RATES SEEN

Insurance Underwriters Make Survey in Marion.

Prospects of a general increase in fire insurance rates for Marion have been seen for some time and conditions bearing on such a step are now being considered by the Columbus office of the National Bureau of Fire Underwriters.

Mayor Russell C. Snare said today representatives of the Columbus office have made a survey of the city's fire fighting facilities and that their report is being compiled. He said he is awaiting a letter from Columbus which will clarify the city's position in the matter.

It is understood the city's fire fighting facilities are considered inadequate to allow continuation of the present "fourth class" rating. A shift to the "fifth" classification would bring with it increased rates for business houses and, in all probability, residences as well.

What percentage of increase in rates would follow is not indicated yet, but it is expected the report by the Columbus officials will define the status and explain what results would come from a new classification.

The change in classification would come in the face of the city's outlay of $40,000 last year for two new fire trucks and a new alarm system, both of which were calculated to improve facilities and thus help stabilize insurance rates.

Another factor which enters into the consideration, however, is the understaffing of the Mar- fire stations. Last summer during vacation periods, it was necessary to close the Mark street station for a short time because of the lack of personnel.

Mayor Snare said no action has been taken yet in regard to the staff minimums at the stations. However, it is expected some plan will be worked out to keep all stations open daily this year.

AFL BUILDING TRADES TO STABILIZE WAGES

Sec. Perkins Announces Agreement for Duration.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 23—Secretary Perkins announced yesterday the AFL building trade unions had agreed voluntarily to stabilize wages on federal construction for the duration of the war. The pact covers 19 unions, with about 1,500,000 members, and six federal agencies in charge of war construction.

A memorandum of agreement formalizing the action provides that beginning July 1 next all renewals of collective bargaining contracts shall contain the rates paid as of that date, except that revisions shall be permitted under certain conditions.

The secretary of labor created a wage adjustment board to rule on requests for rate revisions. Rates may be deemed inadequate if "(A) they are fixed at a time so long before July 1, 1942, as to be out of line with the g wage prevailing; (B) they applicable in a locality changing conditions in the ing construction industry re a revision of wage rates; o they do not sufficiently tak account any abnormal cha- conditions."

Cheerful Home Helps War Worker Relax

A cheerful, comfortable home is always a contributing factor to the well-being and happiness of any family group. Today, in this period of national emergency, the need assumes double significance.

Increased production demands of the war program and overtime work tend to expend the worker's energy, and this can be replenished only in quiet home surroundings that are as restful as possible.

Calling attention to the fact that a high percentage of homes are poorly lighted and have dull and uninteresting paint finishes, experts advise home owners that visual comforts of the home can be greatly improved simply by attractive interior paint finishes and more improved lighting systems.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES
O. S. U. Extension Floriculturist.

Q.: You recently referred to Violas. Just what do you mean by this? In looking it up in Gray's Botany, I find that Viola is a genus of the violet family. D. E., Stanton, Nebraska.

A.: You are botanically correct in saying that the Viola is the genus including all the violets and also pansies. Unfortunately, our horticultural usage of words is not always botanically correct. For instance, we use the term Viola in referring to the various forms of tufted pansies, or Viola cornuta, including such varieties as Jersey Gem, Apricot Queen, Blue Perfection, Arkwright Ruby, and others.

* * *

Q.: I am enclosing a small plant which a friend of mine gave me a few years ago, the name of which I should like to know. It was brought from Germany some years ago. It grows by underground runners to a height of about six inches. It has light green leaves and fragrant white flowers which are in bloom now. I am told that the peasants call it Wald Meister and that they make drink from it for festive occasions in the spring. It is an excellent ground cover because it grows extremely thick. It is not an evergreen. A. N., Cincinnati.

A.: The plant that you sent for identification is the Sweet Woodruff, Asperula odorata. It is particularly desirable as a ground cover in shaded locations, being very lovely under evergreens, among rhododendrons and under shrubs. Incidentally, those who try to grow this from seed have never been very successful; but once you get a plant, you will find it will spread rather rapidly and will divide easily.

* * *

Q.: I should like to know how to rid my flower beds of slugs and cut worms. B.J.B., Piqua.

A.: Slugs, or snails as most people call them, although they do not have shells, cause far more trouble in the seedbed, in the rock garden, and in shaded locations than most folks suspect since they do their work entirely at night. These pests and cutworms may be controlled by the use of a poison bran bait. We originally recommend a bait made up of one ounce of Paris Green, one pound of bran, and a tablespoonful of sirup. To replace the sirup, a recent recommendation consists of one and a half ounces of Paris green, one pound of bran, and one pound of fish meal. This also will control sow bugs or pill bugs as many folks call them.

SIX BUILDING PERMITS ISSUED DURING WEEK

Projects Involved Estimated To Cost $342.

Six building permits for projects estimated to cost $342 were issued this week which ended May 22, Lew Shadaker, acting city clerk, reported. This represented a decrease under last week, when seven permits for jobs totaling $1,055 were issued.

C. J. Watrous of 446 East Church street received the largest permit to remodel a dwelling for $150. Miss Goldus Bolander of 269 East George street received the next biggest: to remodel a garage for $100. Other permits went to:

Hickman DePriest of 752 North Main street, repair porch, $35; Vern Columber of 386 Fies avenue, chickenhouse, $35; George Atkinson of 373 Patterson street, back porch, $12, and George W. Hurth of 475 Elgin court, extend porch, $10.

BASEMENT NOT ALWAYS ESSENTIAL

Eliminating It Cuts Big Item in Building Costs.

Contrary to the old idea, there are times when it is preferable to eliminate the basement in a home, building officials say.

While the cellar of a house did, in the old days, serve some real purpose—for storing food, etc.—it now has no definite function, and unless the topography of the lot makes excavation of a cellar necessary often it is best to leave it out of the plans.

Certain types of furnaces, of course, are designed to be placed beneath the floor and throw the heat upward. However, there are types of furnaces suited for a house which lacks a cellar, and even the makers of hot-air furnaces have designed new types of equipment for houses which do not have basements. It is often less expensive and more economical to install central heating in nonbasement houses.

Elimination of the basement naturally reduces the cost of the house. Many homes in the lower price ranges are being built without basements. This has in no way reduced the livability and convenience of these homes. In place of a cellar, a utility room is added to provide storage room for water-heater and heating equipment.

TERMITE DAMAGE SERIOUS PROBLEM

Few people are able to detect termite infestation until much damage has been done, says Emery T. Smith of the Buckeye Terminix Co. During the Spring months termite swarmers, known as "Flying Ants" emerge from the colony to establish new nests.

This indicates that thousands of destructive workers have been left behind to continue their damaging effects. Smith offers detailed information and free inspection by Phoneing Mansfield, Dial 1538-1, representative office of Buckeye Terminex Co., of Columbus, Ohio.

FHA Land Planning Work Reflects Gain in Building for War Workers

Division Kept Busy Planning Sites for War Housing; Helps Lay Out Whole Neighborhoods.

Almost complete decentralization of the land planning division of the Federal Housing Administration last year has resulted in more effective aid to the developers of residential neighborhoods and in the construction of homes on a high percentage of building lots produced according to FHA officials.

The proportion of subdivisions designed for war workers increased steadily throughout last year until at the present time 100 per cent of the land-planning activities are on the production of sites for war housing under Title VI of the National Housing Act.

While the 1,926 subdivisions analyzed last year were somewhat less in number than in 1940, the 1,723 subdivision sites actually inspected represented a sharp increase. The consultations of FHA land-planning consultants with subdivision developers also increased correspondingly.

Knowledge of Local Conditions

"This is the result of the almost complete decentralization of the land planning division," it was said, "and the recognition that personal contact with developers and familiarity with local conditions are necessary to obtain quick and effective results.

"The subdivisions analyzed last year contained 223,940 lots, also somewhat less than the previous year. But this number compares favorably with the more than 215,000 new dwelling units actually started under FHA inspection in the same period.

"It is clearly evident that, taking into consideration the homes built without FHA financing, no undesirable surplus of lots is being created."

The decrease in the number of subdivisions analyzed is due to greater discrimination in selecting areas to be developed as residential neighborhoods, and also to the increasing trend toward the use of vacant lots in already developed neighborhoods. This trend has been greatly accelerated by the difficulty of getting critical materials for the extension of utilities and by the necessity of placing houses close to industry, schools, and stores because of the curtailment of automobile transportation.

Better Communities Result

The interest the FHA is taking in the creation of better residential neighborhoods through local planning and zoning control is evidenced by the 187 conferences held with local planning and zoning boards. This is in addition to eight general land-planning conferences and a number of lectures and discussions with civic and professional groups interested in improved housing conditions.

Summarizing briefly, 1,926 subdivisions covering 64,027 acres and containing 223,940 lots were analyzed last year by the FHA Land Planning Division. The average size of the subdivisions was 33.2 acres, and the average number of lots per acre was 3.49. Of the total number of lots, 96.5 per cent were for single-family detached houses and 50.6 per cent were for homes to sell under $4,500.

Courthouse Trees on Trial

AGAIN the county commissioners have before them a proposal to do away with the courthouse sycamore trees primarily as a move to end the bird nuisance.

According to a news report, the question will now be submitted to the county board of health, and if that body decides the trees and birds constitute a sanitation problem which can be solved only by removal of the trees, out they will come. And under those circumstances they should come out.

When a similar proposal was submitted to the commissioners last year The Star expressed belief that every possible means of eliminating the bird nuisance should be sought before resorting to removal of the trees. That still is our stand, for aside from the admittedly obnoxious condition resulting from birds there is no good reason for destroying the trees. Much to the contrary, there are other sound reasons why they should be preserved as long as nature does not end their existence.

We place high appraisal on their historical value and make no apologies for that expression of sentiment. These trees have stood for more than a century, dating back to the community's earliest days, and Marion has managed to progress fairly well in their company during that time. In fact, it is altogether likely that they have contributed their part to Marion's advancement, for during most of these years they have by no means detracted from the general view of the downtown central area. Instead, they have masked or offset some of the not so attractive buildings and for that matter perform the same service now. That may become unpleasantly apparent if the trees are removed.

But we are not denying that the bird pestilence should and must be eliminated, and if that can be accomplished only by taking away the sycamores, apply the ax and do it as soon as possible. We agree with the Academy of Medicine spokesmen who have informed the commissioners that nothing must stand in the way of safeguarding public health. But let us be sure that what is done is essential for that purpose.

After all, we wonder whether removal of the trees will actually free the downtown district of the bird nuisance. In recent months, more have been roosting on the eaves of the courthouse and business buildings than have congregated in the sycamores. Ample evidence is found on sidewalks and the building walls virtually every morning. Possibly the trees serve as an attraction and the buildings are used merely by way of diversion. We are not enough of an authority on birds to venture an explanation. We'll know more about it if the sycamores are removed. Then if the birds still persist we can attack on a new front.

Regardless of what may be done about the trees, the Academy of Medicine deserves commendation for its five proposals made to the county commissioners as an expression of interest in public welfare. Cleaning and modernizing the courthouse toilets, particularly the men's comfort station, an improvement we recently suggested, could be done without delay and probably will be. Removing the esplanade flagstones, cleaning the courthouse exterior and taking away the south steps unquestionably would greatly enhance the looks of the building and its surroundings, although the commissioners point out that a part of this work might cost a rather high figure. Cost, of course, must be considered in these days when about all the money folks have is needed to finance our war effort, but even that should not be a barrier to essential community improvements.

Symbolic Kharkov

IF it be true that the long-awaited Nazi spring offensive was prepared for Great Britain, instead of Russia — a minority opinion of a few analysts — the battle of Kharkov may be decisive. Invasion of the British Isles could be undertaken only on the assumption that the eastern front could be "stabilized." Kharkov, therefore, would have to be held. A successful Russian offensive at that point would upset the whole plan of holding the eastern front in status quo and launching an attack in the west.

It would do something even more important than that. As Lieut. Col. W. F. Kernan makes plain in his lucid treatise on offensive war called "Defense Will Not Win The War," Adolf Hitler's secret has been seizure of the initiative. Everything he has done has been in the furtherance of that vital policy—even his purge of German generals. Once robbed of the initiative, he is through.

Defeat at Kharkov wouldn't mean quick death to Nazi aggression, but it would advertise to the whole world, including the Germans at home, that things were as serious on the Russian front as they have appeared to be from time to time since the German offensive was changed into retreat last November.

News Behind the News

Battle of Production Goes Over the Top in U. S. Factories.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, May 23 — The battle of production has been won.

American industry went over the top in April, out of the preparatory organizing phase, and into the great American stride of mass production which no other can equal anywhere. From now on the production line on our chart will go nearly straight up.

We reached the producing rate of $40,000,000,000 a year in April. It will be up another 25 per cent to $50,000,000,000 in June and $70,000,000,000 — nearly double April — before the end of the year.

As War Producer Donald Nelson told a friend the other day, the metamorphosis of that great economic giant called American industry was as vast and violent as the change which took place in the oil and auto industries in 1911-15 when Henry Ford discovered the conveyor belt and started turning out model T's like cans of corn.

Great as our peacetime production standard was before we entered upon defense, the expansion which has been piled on top of it now is greater still.

Ahead of Schedule

Practically every phase — airplanes, tanks and guns — is ahead of those stupendous schedules which Mr. Roosevelt laid before congress at the outset of our defense effort, schedules that many doubted could be attained.

The reason we are ahead is the same one which is now beginning to show itself on the fighting front—superior American ingenuity. New techniques were discovered.

Schedule for a west coast plane factory, for instance, was 50 planes a month. The factory is today turning out 150 planes a month.

When the production line was set up there, both industry and labor began finding day after day new ways to speed it up until they trebled it.

Mass production never remains static. Small arms production is anywhere from 25 per cent up, ahead of its blueprints, because of technical advancements. In shell production, it was discovered steel could be substituted for brass (copper) on shells of less than 5-inch calibre, and since then this line has been sizzling.

Airplanes have three unsatisfactory factory spots, mentioned in this column previously, but all others are now ahead. Difficulty now is the supply of processed materials like aluminum castings and forgings. How high production will go will apparently depend on how this shortage is worked out.

Plane Production

Among the aviation factories which have done an outstanding job are the Consolidated four motor bomber plant on the Pacific coast and the Curtiss-Wright plant in upper New York state.

Chrysler has distinguished itself greatly in creating the tank arsenal in Michigan. General Motors production figures in dollars (for the sake of military secrecy) show it hit the mass stage in April, putting $112,000,000 of war materials for that month, up $17,000,000 from March.

Sperry gyroscope is getting a [illegible] pat from headquarters here for what it has done in instruments, and National Cash Register has distinguished itself in fire control equipment (shooting stuff).

There are still some bad lines, mainly merchant ship building. Warship building is O. K., except in one small-boat phase. Merchant ships are only slightly behind schedule, but government economists figure that if the April rate of ship sinkings is suffered the remainder of the year, the 8,000,000 ton goal of our construction (even if it is reached) will be 2,000,000 tons short of what is needed.

The first three months of the year deliveries of steel plate to shipyards were behind, but this condition is now being remedied by diversion. The bottleneck here now is in the supplies of pipes, engines, seacocks and such.

In fact, things are going so well on this primary battle line, WPB has curtailed its new plant building and is switching the raw materials into actual production of tanks, ships, etc.

Foolish stories are being spread around that this change was effected because WPB thought the war might soon end, but the real reason is plain enough. There is no use in pushing iron and steel into new factories when your existing capacity can make more tanks and guns with it. At hand is May 31, the date for the end of most consumers durable goods production, and these old refrigerator and radio factories also will be available for war production thereafter.

First Big Step

Now this does not mean the war is over. It does mean the battle on the important initial front has been won. Troubles on that front, of course, are not ended. Shortages of materials lie ahead, particularly for the period of the end of this year.

Factories yet are far from a 3-shift capacity basis. They are beyond the one and one and a half shifts, but there is yet some leeway for advancement on this angle, and others.

The important thing now is that it was won by the same sort of stuff Doolittle showed over Japan, MacArthur and the navy exhibited when they knocked the Japs off in the Coral sea before they could get started on a new invasion, and the boys showed when a large convoy was landed in Ireland without seeing a German sub. It shows what American ingenuity can do when it gets into aggressive action.

No other nation, no other system, political or economic, has ever been able to tie it, in war or peace. Here is the first war victory for our democratic way of life.

Today and Tomorrow

Call Sounded for Appointment of an Over-All Commander for Navy.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

IN DELEGATING his authority to Admiral Vickery for the construction and to Mr. Lewis W. Douglas for the operation of ships, Admiral Land has shown the qualities of a good leader—the ability to pick able men and to give them power. It is never a sign of weakness or of failure when a man in high position delegates authority; on the contrary, it is a sign of his strength and of his capacity to deserve success. The President, for example, is now beginning to reap the good fruits of the decision he took some months ago when he delegated his authority over war production to Mr Nelson. So in his own smaller, but nevertheless critically important sphere, will it be with Admiral Land in the days to come.

By this decision the way has been opened to the next necessary steps in producing and operating ships. As regards production, we may confidently hope that Admiral Vickery and Mr. Nelson will move as rapidly as possible to develop a system of allocations by which materials will flow smoothly to the shipyards. As regards operation, we may confidently hope that Mr. Douglas will take the drastic decisions which are needed in order to bring all the ships of the United Nations into full military use. We may then hope that Admiral Land, with his final authority over all shipping, will devote some part of his energy to insisting that better protection is provided for his precious ships and their precious crews.

Protection is, of course, the task of the navy. It seems clear that the navy department is, as regards the submarine, not truly organized on a war basis. If we look upon the struggle with the submarine in American waters as one of the great naval campaigns of the war, which, in fact it is, then we have a right to ask: Who is the MacArthur, who is the Nimitz, who is the commander in chief on this front? The answer is that nobody is commander in chief, and that this battle is being waged without unity of command.

There is no one whose word is final and decisive over all the forces engaged, on shore, off shore and in the air. The commandants and the Washington bureaus and the coast guard and the army air force are no doubt trying to co-operate and to co-ordinate themselves. But they have no recognized and undisputed commander in this battle. The struggle is not organized as a campaign of battles, and that is one of the determining reasons why it is not being waged in the spirit of battles. When it is waged in this spirit, we shall know it by hearing of the appointment of a fighting commander to lead the campaign.

We shall have to come to this eventually. Then, why not come to it now? In the intricacies of official Washington, where molehills so often seem like mountains, clear and healing decisions of this sort always seem difficult to make. Yet they are very simple and obvious once they have been made.

I have just come back to Washington from a few days in the Middle West and in New England. The change in mood is, unless I am much mistaken, a notable proof that the observers were right who said that the thing we mean by that horrid word "morale" would, in the country, be a direct reflection of how actively the people were able to participate in the war. Since early winter the conversion of industry to war production has been cumulative and successfull. This has brought with it an immense pride and feeling of confidence. The American people like to produce things. Never before, I imagine, have they had such a chance to do the thing they like to do and know how to do—to produce without thinking of anything else but producing—without having to consider balance sheets and customers and competitors. The war is a producer's dream, and the sense of power and of competence which men are finding in doing what is needed will, I believe, give to the American economy enterprise and confidence which it has not had since the opening of the west.

Hard as it is to discern the future or to prove what is mere intuition, I have the strongest impression that the men who are actively working in the war are beginning to live more and more in a mentally different world from most of the politicians, and the agents of pressure groups, and from many who talk about public affairs in the alignments and in the language of pre-war days. I do not think they feel about many issues—industrial relations, vested interests, taxes, or the passing confusions of rationing and wartime regimentation—as much of our current discussion assumes as a matter of course. I have the feeling, though I could not possibly prove it, that they find much of the discussion hackneyed and uninteresting and unimportant.

That accounts, I suspect, for the widespread impatience with congress, and also for the evident fact, noted recently by the Gallup poll, that if the congressional elections took place now, the President would increase his majority. As the people become actively engaged in the war, their sons at the front, they in necessary work,

Thirty members of the Erie accounting bureau held a picnic at the Augenstine grove a mile south of Waldo. A recent bride, Mrs. Carl Miller, and Miss Mildred Harbison, who was soon to be married, were given presents from the accounting bureau employes. The presentation address was given by Paul Huling. Two baseball teams, each made up of both men and women, played a five-inning game. A team captained by Russell Wilhelm defeated one captained by Ralph T. Horseman, 10 to 1.

Plans were completed for Marion's Memorial Day celebration at a meeting of the general committee. Officers were Col. George B. Christian, president of the day; Capt. Gilbert V. West Point and the War

New Emphasis Placed on Air Corps Training.

THE job that the U. S. military academy at West Point has been preparing young men to do is at hand. In a current communication from its public relations office, the war status of the United States military academy is described, in part, as follows.

Military observers freshly returned from fighting fronts give first-hand information in lectures to West Pointers. Cadet instructors are relieving officers for war duties. New emphasis is being placed on air corps training and beginning with class of 1943 all graduates planning to enter air corps will graduate from West Point with "wings."

Spanish has been made a two-year course, and French has been decreased from a two-year to a one-year course. All students are on a 52-week basis, and the normal graduation leave of cadets has been decreased from approximately three months to four days. West Pointers are working and studying 16 hours a day.

The academy is now in its 140th year. On March 16, 1802, congress passed a law creating a corps of engineers, consisting of five officers and 10 cadets to be stationed at West Point. Instruction began on July 4th of the same year. The academy as known today came into being in 1817, when Col. Sylvanus Thayer became superintendent. He established the present course of instruction lasting for four years. West Point graduates became famous both as soldiers and as engineers.

In the World war, West Point graduates provided valuable leadership. Newton D. Baker, then secretary of war, said after the armistice: "West Point has again demonstrated its supreme value to the country in the hour of need . . . In all the walks of life, character is the basis of enduring success. West Point does many things for its men, but the highest quality it gives them is character, and in the emergency of the World war, our success rested on the character of our leaders."

Present authorized strength of the U. S. corps of cadets is 1,960. Each senator and representative is entitled to appoint and have at the academy three cadets.

Dogs Guard Plants

By International News Service

WASHINGTON — Trained watchdogs have amply proved their worth in guarding defense plants and industries, the War Department says.

"One well-trained dog is the equivalent of six guards," declared Lieut. Col. Clifford Smith.

Afghans, German shepherds, Dobermann pinschers — all have been "drafted" into service to furnish not only protection, but also companionship for Army and Navy sentries.

Trained by Dogs For Defense, Inc., New York City, an organization of dog fanciers, breeders and trainers, the canines are put through a systematic course which teaches them to detect the presence of prowlers.

In one instance along the Pacific Coast, watchdogs were responsible for locating several men hiding in a boat underneath the piers, the Army revealed.

Burton Hits Joyriding When Seamen Risk Lives

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, May 23 — U. S Senator Harold H. Burton (R-Ohio) declared no one has a right to joyride on gasoline transported in tankers by men who risk their lives on every trip.

Burton told shipping company executives of the Propellor club that transportation of war materials to far flung outposts and to the fighting centers of our allies "probably is the key to the whole war effort at present"

"We can't start invasion until we get more ships to keep our invading soldiers supplied," he said.

Burton, a member of the senate's commerce committee, spoke in observance of maritime day both here and at Lorain where a 640-foot ore freighter, the Irving S. Olds of the Pittsburgh Steamship Co was launched

President Spikes Premature Talk of Early Peace

A surprising amount of pleasant but vague talk about how the war is going to end this year provided the background for President Roosevelt's cautionary remarks of yesterday to the effect that, on the contrary, it was going to be a long war.

As Mr. Roosevelt said, there was no special reason for the wave of optimism. Apparently, however, it stemmed from a combination of the repulsion of the Japanese fleet in the Coral sea, the preliminary reports on the Russian offensive before Kharkov, and on the "gloom offensive" which has come out of enemy Germany itself, in the speeches of Hitler, Goering & Co.

What has been overlooked by the optimists are these facts

1. The Japanese fleet north of Australia remains an extremely sinister factor.

2. The Red army's Kharkov offensive is a preventive military action, designed to weaken the power of the expected German offensive against the Caucasus which today appears to be in its developing stages, despite heavy German losses in material.

3. The Hitler-Goering lamentations about how tough the going is for Germany were carefully wrapped up and delivered in America by the Nazi short wave radio "news" service because the Nazis wanted them to be believed.

Several keen students of the Nazi propaganda strategy have become convinced in recent days that Hitler's present efforts are directed toward creating an early military stalemate and that, to this end, he is trying to build up a peace mood among the people of the United Nations.

Axis radio broadcasts certainly bear this out. Yesterday while the Tokyo propagandists were busy arguing that "China and Australia are fighting over American aid, and are able to get nothing but promises," Berlin radio was covering the American home front thus:

"News stories" about rising wages are "giving the U S A government shivers" over inflation.

Alternating reports of vast profits for oil companies in Rumania and allegedly decreasing returns for U. S petroleum industries.

"Labor news" about how contact with Russia is going to "undermine" workers' morale in America

All this could have but one purpose: to plant in American minds the fear of the consequences of a long struggle trapped in their sleep. Communication with the town was difficult.

Reports from the anthracite counties, particularly hard hit, indicated the property damage would run into the hundreds of thousands of dollars. Several collieries were forced to shut down as steadily climbing streams endangered underground workings.

The Schuylkill, Lehigh and Lackawanna rivers and scores of tributaries rolled over their banks under the impetus of recent rains, some of them up to 10 feet above flood stage.

Houses Washed Away

Residents reported "only four or five houses" remaining on Delaware street in Honesdale where there had been 15. Most of the occupants of these houses were evacuated last night.

The federal-state flood forecasting service at Harrisburg said only small tributaries were at dangerous levels and that the bigger streams were not expected to reach damaging proportions

Most of the rampaging creeks crested by dawn and were receding slowly.

CONGRESS DIVIDED ON BRITISH TRIP

Delegation Proposed To Visit Parliament in Enlgand.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 23 — Congressional leaders were reported divided today on whether to send ten senators and representatives of both parties to England for talks with parliament on war problems and peace aims.

A tentative invitation for the visit was laid before a group of senate and house leaders by an unnamed British spokesman at a secret conference at the capitol yesterday.

Democrats were said to have given the idea general approval. However, senate Republican leader McNary and house Republican Leader Martin were reported somewhat skeptical about the wisdom of sending such a large delegation to Great Britain at this time.

A reported suggestion at the conference that the leaders of both houses be included among the five Republicans and five Democrats who would make the trip, probably in July, brought questions as to the effect of their absence on the progress of important legislation, particularly the tax bill now pending before the house ways and means committee

Those interested made it plain that no definite invitation had been issued in behalf of the British parliament or would be issued until congressional leaders determined for a certainty whether it would be accepted. The plan was advanced, they said, to bring together the legislative leaders of the two countries primarily for a study of the problems of conducting the war and to sound out each others' views on the kind of peace that might be reached when fighting on the battlefields had ended.

WORLD WAR PENSIONS HIT CONGRESS BLOCK

Administration Seeks To Delay Action on Payments.

WASHINGTON, May 23 — The administration sought today to block World war pension legislation passed by the house almost a year ago and reported near approval by the senate finance committee.

After conferring with President Roosevelt, Veterans Administrator Frank T. Hines said he would seek an early conference with Majority Leader Barkley (D-Ky) and Chairman George (D-Ga) of the finance committee to ask that the legislation be deferred "because of other demands" now upon the government.

The senate group recently suspended hearings on two bills involved pending a determination of the President's reaction. Hines told reporters the Chief Executive had not expressed a stand on either measure, but the administrator hinted both would be vetoed if passed now.

The two measures would cost upwards of $30,000,000 the first year, according to official estimates, with the cost rising thereafter.

One provides for pensions for widows and children and dependent parents of veterans of the World war. The other increases to $40 a month from $30 the existing pension for disabled veterans and grants this pension to all veterans when they reach 65.

southern flank, attempting to cut a wedge into Soviet lines, but a Russian counterattack destroyed 39 tanks and forced the Nazis to retreat several miles.

Unofficial Soviet tabulations listed German tank losses at more than 750, including 85 knocked out of action Thursday.

While the Germans painted an optimistic picture of Von Bock's armies seizing the initiative, the Russians declared they were still forcing the pace.

At mid-day, Red army headquarters announced:

"During the night of May 22-23, our troops in the Kharkov direction consolidated their positions and engaged the enemy in offensive battles.

"In the Izyum-Barvenkova direction, our troops repelled enemy attacks and inflicted large losses upon him."

Official Soviet dispatches also reported that the Red armies before Kharkov stormed and captured "a powerfully fortified position," and declared that in retreating, the Germans abandoned five field guns, a radio station and other booty.

In the Crimea, the Russians said they were continuing to hold out against powerful German-Rumanian forces on the Kerch peninsula, while the Germans were reported exerting new pressure on long-besieged Sevastopol, key Black sea naval base.

German warplanes were said to have been pounding the base violently for the past 48 hours.

Officer of Ship Berates Captain of Axis U-Boat

By The Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS May 23—Joachim Johansen, Vineland, N. J. first mate of a Honduran cargo vessel shelled and abandoned in the Gulf of Mexico, boarded the submarine which attacked his ship and reviled the commander for "injustice."

The attack—ninth officially announced since submarines started operating in the gulf—took place May 15. One crewman was killed in the shelling. The navy announced the incident yesterday

The submarine, ship crewmen said was apparently of Italian design but manned by Germans

The ship sighted the submarine about four miles distant in midafternoon. The submersible gave chase, overhauled the ship and opened fire with a light gun and machine guns

The chase ended when the ship's captain ordered the ship abandoned.

After the crewmen had taken to lifeboats, the submarine officers ordered the boat in which Johansen was riding alongside. Harry Schlesinger of New Orleans, ship radio operator, said when the boat neared the submarine, Johansen jumped to the sub's deck and "when he got aboard the sub he said 'This is an injustice. You killed men on that ship.'"

Schlesinger said the submarine commander attempted to take over the lifeboat to carry explosives to the ship to sink it, indicating that the submarine had no torpedoes. Johansen, Schlesinger said, argued at length with the submarine officers to stall for time and get help.

The submarine officers suddenly abandoned their plan and cast loose the life boat. Johansen jumped into it, and the submarine crash dived.

Says War Ends Myth of White Superiority

By The Associated Press

GRANVILLE, O., May 23—The war has ended the "300-year-old myth of the superiority of the white race," Dr. Werner A. Bohnstedt, former German magazine editor, asserts.

Bohnstedt, now visiting professor of political science at Mt. Union college, told an institute on post-war problems at Denison university yesterday that the yellow, brown and black races will array themselves against the whites after the war unless the peace provides for equality of races

"We must have equality between races or there will be a third world conflict within our lifetime," he declared "We must practice the brotherhood of man if the peace after the current war is just and durable"

U. S. Solving Submarine Problem, President Says

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 23—President Roosevelt said last night that the shipping situation was serious but that the submarine menace was being solved.

"We have been, we still are, confronted with a serious shortage of ships to carry the essentials of war," he said in a maritime day statement. "Submarines of the axis aggressors have taken a heavy toll.

"But that problem, like others confronting us, is being solved. Our ships are going through and will continue to go through in growing numbers."

When the shipbuilding program was launched a little more than a year ago, the President said, there were those who doubted the country's ability to carry it out.

"Today I can assure you that we will perform this near-miracle of ship production," he said. "The nation's shipbuilding capacity has been increased more than 500 per cent. That of itself is an outstanding achievement."

People Urged To Open Rooms for Defense Men

WASHINGTON, May 23—The war production board order limiting sales of softwood lumber, with the resultant slowing down of emergency housing construction, intensified the need for families to open their spare rooms to war workers in crowded areas, Director Howard Strong of the homes registration division said today.

Strong recently projected the possibility of forced billeting of war workers in homes in localities where housing shortages have developed.

He emphasized today, however, that this would be done only as "a last resort."

AFL SENDS OFFER OF PEACE TO CIO

Green Again Holds Out Olive Branch to Rival.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, May 23—The AFL today held out a new offer to its offshoot, the CIO, asking the rival labor organization to come back home again "because of the war"

Old wounds in the side of labor immediately became apparent in the response of Philip Murray, CIO president, who said that obstacles to reunion were perhaps the same the organization "had to meet back in 1935."

It was then that John L. Lewis, towering figure in the United Mine Workers, led a dozen unions away from the parent AFL in the extended controversy over the craft versus the industrial union organization

William Green, AFL president, announced at the end of the organization's executive council meeting yesterday that the council had instructed him to advise CIO representatives that "the peace committee of the AFL stands ready to meet with them for the purpose of negotiating peace and unity"

In Cleveland, Murray cautiously explained that the proposal would have to be submitted to the CIO executive board.

A "fixed welding" of the organizations, he said, would face obstacles. He expressed an unwillingness "to accept the kind of unity that is calculated to bring about the destruction of these huge mechanisms that have been created within the CIO during the past six years."

MURRAY HEADS NEW STEEL MEN'S UNION

CIO President Elected Without Opposition.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, May 23—Elected without opposition to head the CIO's new United Steelworkers of America, CIO president Philip Murray today expressed his desire to promote "national unity within labor movements of this country" but promised to fight to the bitter end to protect his leadership of the union.

Murray also headed the Steel Workers Organizing Committee from which the new union was formed.

"I always try to evade discord and dissension," he asserted, "but if any attempts are made to undermine, destroy and sabotage my leadership of this union I shall then fight any man who tries it until hell freezes over."

First president of the new union at a $20,000 annual salary, Murray assumes broad powers under the union's constitution which provides "no strike shall be called without the approval of the international president."

Other officers elected by the Steelworkers before the convention closed last night were Van A. Bittner, 57, Chicago, and Clinton S. Golden, 58, assistants to the president, and David J. McDonald, 40, Pittsburgh, secretary-treasurer. The positions pay $12,000 annually. All officials held similar posts with the SWOC.

GALLUP POLL

Some of the better known papers supporting the Institute's researches are New York Times, Seattle Times, Philadelphia Bulletin, Atlanta Constitution, Los Angeles Times, Chicago Daily News, Baltimore Sun, Memphis Commercial Appeal, Birmingham News and St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

THE Institute's technique is the result of long and careful study." In 1933, Dr. George Gallup began to lay the foundations of the present service by experimental studies with sampling referenda on issues and elections.

Today the Institute's surveys are conducted by means of a large statistical and analytical staff and by means of 1,000 field reporters who interview an assigned number of voters with each survey. Interviews take place in the home or on the street, and different voters are reached in each study. Back of the actual field work is careful work by Institute statisticians in fashioning a "population," sample or cross-section — the electorate in miniature which forms the basis of the Institute's work.

In every survey, depending on statistical requirements, the Institute includes from 3,000 to 60,000 voters. Such samples insure that any error due solely to the number of persons interviewed will not under normal circumstances exceed 4 percent. According to the laws of statistical probability, the odds are 997 in 1,000 that the error will not exceed 2.74 per cent.

Full details as to the procedures followed by the Institute have been included in a booklet entitled "The New Science of Public Opinion Measurement," a copy of which will be sent to anyone addressing the American Institute of Public Opinion, Princeton, New Jersey.

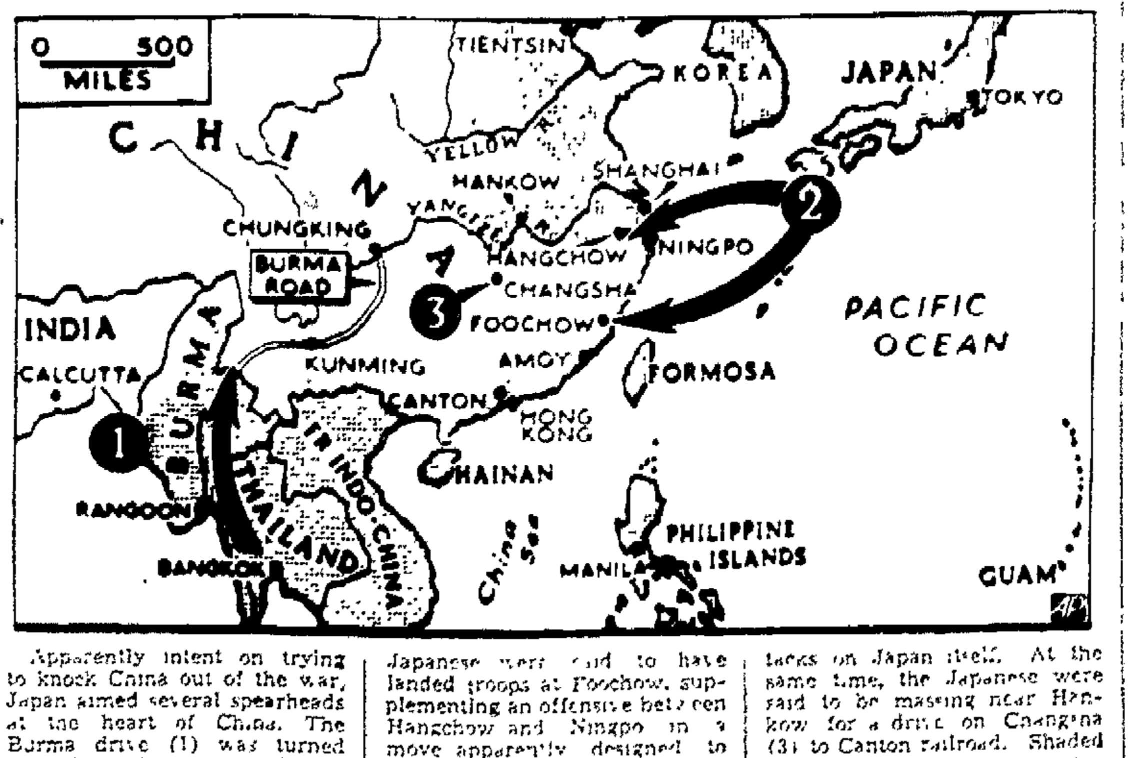
JAP SPEARHEADS SHOWN POINTING AT HEART OF CHINA



Apparently intent on trying to knock China out of the war, Japan aimed several spearheads at the heart of China. The Burma drive (1) was turned toward the Burma road and Chungking. To the east (2), Japanese were said to have landed troops at Foochow, supplementing an offensive between Hangchow and Ningpo in a move apparently designed to forestall the United Nations' use of forward areas for attacks on Japan itself. At the same time, the Japanese were said to be massing near Hankow for a drive on Changsha (3) to Canton railroad. Shaded area represents territory controlled by Japan.

JUST THINGS

By EDNA S. DUTTON

Memorial Day

NEXT Saturday is Memorial day and this year more so than in many years past, we will pause to remember. Bands will play, we will hear the Gettysburg address, and the soldiers of every war will be praised for his deeds. It was the widow of a Civil war soldier killed in the battle of Fort Donaldson who gave the United States the Memorial day observance, according to some authorities. Two war veterans, sitting on the porch of a country church at Carbondale, Ill., watched the widow place a small wreath on her husband's grave in the cemetery and offer a silent prayer. Impressed they decided to decorate the graves of their comrades. They mentioned the plan to their friends and a special service was arranged for April 29, 1866. Rain interfered and it was held the following day.

* * *

Declaration

LED by a brass band, 219 uniformed veterans of the war paraded down Carbondale to Woodlawn cemetery, so the story goes. General John A. Logan delivered the Memorial address, closing with the stirring declaration "Every man's life belongs to his country and no man has the right to refuse it when his country calls for it." Flowers were then placed on the grave of every soldier.

* * *

Marchers

THERE are those who remember when happenings were dated "before" and "after" Decoration day. It was a day when there was much to be done in the way of getting ready for the parade and the placing of wreaths at "both cemeteries." Sunday shoes may have worn blisters on both heels, but no soldier ever marched with less complaint and more fortitude than those BTC (before the turn of the century) patriots. If some grew faint there was always the sample wagon on hand to provide a lift, but it was a safe bet that outside the visiting dignitaries no one rode and the marchers followed through to the placing of the last posey. And they wouldn't have traded places with the richest princess in the fairy tale book.

No Chance To Fight in Open—Dutch Battle Nazis from Under Cover

LONDON, May 23 — (Wide World)—Ghostly battalions marching on an unseen battlefield, soldiers who fought hopelessly in the open for four days and who have fought underground for two years: That's the Dutch army which Heinrich Himmler, high executioner for Adolf Hitler, has been sent to the Netherlands to conquer.

Firing squads have by no means "liquidated" this secret force, which is organized with military thoroughness, largely by military men—the officers of the queen who had no real chance to show their worth in May of 1940.

They have shown it once. As long as a year ago, 18 of them were condemned by German juridicial usurpers, sitting on the bench of the high court of justice at the Hague. In the last few weeks, 96 more have been shot, thousands arrested.

Hitler Sends Himmler

But Hitler knew the work went on, so this week he sent Himmler.

Some details of how these secret organizations function, made available today by Aneta, the free Dutch news agency, show plainly that neither assassination nor sabotage is the real aim of the secret high command, although both are frequent. As one member said at a recent trial: "We are not so much a terror organization as we are an organization preparing, nay, ready, to assist the British when they land in Holland."

In the last trial not one of the accused persons knew his leaders. They had been working with special liaisons between the various ranks of the organizations. These ranks received their instructions in codes that were changed almost every day, and the system of distribution never has been discovered by the Germans.

One section of the organization collected information for the use of the RAF. Its main activity was concentrated in the districts along the mouth of the river Maas between Rotterdam and the hook of Holland.

A second group had the special task of examining and listing all bridges in order to make the record available to the ultimate allied invaders.

Study Nazis Defenses

A third section, formed into ostensible hiking clubs, was charged with finding out everything possible about disposition of German defenses, so that its members could act as guides for invading forces.

A fourth group agreed to lose no opportunity of killing German soldiers. They made excellent work of the combination of the German enforced blackout and the country's network of canals, but they had also more subtle means.

Pins on desks used by Germans were turned into tiny poison arrows. Many a thirsty German never lived to thank the Dutchman who bought him a cocktail or a glass of champagne.

A fifth section set to work on the wharves, where they collected information and conducted as much sabotage as was opportune.

This particular trial lasted for five days, and many times during the sessions the German president roared with anger at "the impertinence of these bare-faced liars."

250 Juniors and Seniors At Colorful Annual Prom

By HALLIE HOUCK

Top social event for Harding High school's seniors of '42 was the annual prom given for them last night at the Hy-Way Rollarena by the juniors of Harding and Thomas A. Edison Junior High school.

Some 250 people turned out to dance to the music of Gene Crunenwett and his orchestra from Galion. A few couples ventured on the dance floor before 9:30 but by grand March time at 10 most of the guests and their hosts had arrived.

Keith Williams, president of the Harding junior class and general chairman of arrangements, led the dance with Patricia Dodd gowned in [illegible] white net with long fitted sleeves and a soft woods green [illegible] at the bodice.

Next in line were the senior class president, Day Hurst, with Ethel Granger, who wore a gay patchwork skirt, light yellow jersey blouse and red wooden beads.

For the girls it was a dress-up affair. They all wore formals. The boys varied their dress, from white coats and black trousers to the latest sportswear combinations.

Variety of Dance Steps

Unfamiliar though the reporter is with the latest dance terminology, everything in the way of the latest steps except the most strenuous was being danced with varying degrees of success. Everyone had a grand time.

Two of the orchids spotted on the dance floor were worn by blonds, one wearer in orchid net over orchid taffeta, the other in a full white organza frock banded with rows of soft flower print and made with an off-the-shoulder neckline.

Glazed chintz made several effective gowns, one a soft blue flower print, another a red and black hoop-skirt worn with a fitted white bodice with black velvet ribbon around the neck and short sleeves.

A green girdle accented a chrysanthemum print on tomato red skirt worn with a white jersey blouse and red wooden necklace. A white jersey gown was set off with vertical black and white striped bands at the hips and waist and forming a bolero effect.

A slim white pique gown was made with a wide white embroidered girdle edged with black velvet ribbon running through beading. Cut-out roses from the material of the printed linen long-torso bodice splashed down the white chiffon skirt of another gown.

Yards and yards of material went into making a gown of white with huge soft-pink roses, contrasted by a poudre blue girdle.

Colorful Formals

A white lace inset at the waist and white lace sleeves were interesting in one plain white dress and a bouffant gown was created by white dotted Swiss over pastel peach, green, and blue dotted Swiss. A white jacket topped a full skirt of red, green and white check and a white net frock was accented with vertical rows of narrow black lace down the skirt and a black girdle.

Red poppies printed one white taffeta skirt worn with a chiffon blouse with bishop sleeves, and a tiny cap of the material of the skirt. Red velvet bows marched down the side of an embroidered white organdy and a white taffeta gown was printed with bronze strawberries. An effective combination was gained in a soft blue net skirt and a full pink net blouse. White pin-dotted red organdy made another gown and another was of white organdy over yellow.

There were taffetas in white and pastel shades, chiffon and lace combinations, and quite a few bright prints worn with short white jackets.

Many of the girls complemented their gowns with long formal evening coats or short evening jackets. They chose to wear their corsages in their hair — single gardenias were popular hair ornaments—on their shoulders or on their wrists.

Faculty Guests

Supt. and Mrs. E. E. Holt, principal and Mrs. O. H. P. Snyder of Harding, Principal and Mrs. J. E. Frew of Edison, school board members, faculty members and their friends and parents of seniors were guests.

In an intermission in dancing entertainment was provided by pupils of Miss Jayne Melby, Marion dancing instructor. Songs and dances, in costume, were presented by Ethel Taylor, Betty Knappenberger, Gene Andrews, Betty Baird and Mary Lou Cornelius, accompanied at the piano by Miss Pauline Mayfield.

The dance programs, in spring-like yellow covers printed in green and tied with tasseled green cord, were distributed by eight sophomores, Gwen Long, Elizabeth Zuspan, Rex Kilbourne and Stuart Young of Harding, and Barbara Blue, Wilma Lee, Russell Midlam and James Erick of Edison.

Garden Setting

The entrances to the dance floor were garlanded with greenery and in the southeast corner of the floor there was a spotlighted garden setting, achieved with grass matting and many bouquets of garden flowers. The band was enclosed by a white picket fence entwined with greenery and the walls back of the band were looped with garlands of greenery.

Members of the city police force were at the pavilion to check admission cards and watch the many cars.

When the prom was over at midnight the young people invaded the downtown area and, as they followed the custom of former years, went to surrounding towns, for midnight snacks and early morning breakfasts.

D. N. Bohyer of the Harding faculty was the faculty adviser for the prom.

The various committees, composed of juniors from both schools, follow:

'The Invaders,' War Picture, To Start Week at Palace

Three Top Male Stars in Adventure Drama; "The Lady Is Willing" To Begin Thursday.

Three top male stars, Laurence Olivier, Leslie Howard and Raymond Massey, and a lovely feminine newcomer, Glynis Johns, are in the far-flung adventure drama, "The Invaders," coming to the Palace Sunday for three days.

The plot-line concerns the raid of a Nazi submarine in the Gulf of St. Lawrence and the Hudson Bay. After destroying Canadian shipping and murdering the crews, the sub itself is sunk by the Royal Canadian Air Force. But a portion of the crew is ashore at the time and embark on a simultaneous program of flight and destruction.

The picture was put into production more than a year before the first enemy periscope was raised above the east coast of the United States. The governments of England, Canada and the United States gave official cooperation. Customs officials at the Niagara Bridge contributed one of the most pertinent sequences to the film.

Olivier plays an exuberant French-Canadian trooper who believes the war is far away and none of his business; Howard appears as a dilettante who tries to escape from the world by retiring to an idyllic mountain fastness; Massy is a Canadian soldier AWOL who learns his right to grumble is worth fighting for. The lives of the three are dramatically changed by the Nazi submarine incident.

Van Heflin of "H. M. Pulham Esq.," Marsha Hunt and Lee Bowman play the principal roles in the Wednesday picture, "Kid Glove Killer." The story concerns the election of an honest mayor and district attorney. When it is discovered the two meant their campaign promises to clean up the city, murder enters the picture. Heflin, a police chemist, and Miss Hunt, his assistant, solve the slayings through scientific research. Bowman plays a radio announcer.

"The Lady Is Willing," co-starring Marlene Dietrich and Fred MacMurray, will be shown Thursday and Friday. Miss Dietrich suffered a broken leg while making this picture and the cause of her accident was infant Baby Corey. Carrying the baby in a nursery scene, the star tripped over a toy fire engine and in twisting to keep from falling on the baby she suffered a leg fracture.

The picture offers Miss Dietrich her first screwball comedy role. As an actress who is "all heart and no head," she kidnaps an abandoned infant from under the noses of the police. Learning that she has to be married to adopt a child, she proposes to MacMurray and after their marriage ignores him as completely as she can. Aline MacMahon comes back to the screen as her caustic and constant-harassed secretary.

The new Abbott and Costello comedy, "Rio Rita," will open next Saturday.

Every Japanese word ends in either a vowel or the letter n.

4-Star Cast in Ohio Film

"In This Our Life" Is Featured; "My Gal Sal" Coming.

Bette Davis, Olivia de Havilland, Dennis Morgan and George Brent are the quartet of stars in the drama, "In This Our Life," which opened yesterday at the Ohio. It will play through Thursday, and will be followed by "My Gal Sal," a technicolor musical starring Rita Hayworth and Victor Mature.

"In This Our Life" has Charles Coburn, Frank Craven and Billie Burke heading the supporting cast.

Based on the successful story by Ellen Glasgow, the film is set in the south where a once-proud family has lost much prestige through the financial manipulations of one member.

Bette plays the role of Stanley, a capricious, inconsiderate girl who believes her own happines is the only thing that counts. But she never gains that happiness. Her own striving for the unattainable brings unhappiness to to her and to everyone with whom she comes in contact.

Her sister, Roy, played by Miss de Havilland, is the one to be most affected by Stanley's thoughtless acts. Stanley, who is engaged to a young lawyer, played by Brent, plans to forget about him and run off with her sister's husband, a surgeon, portrayed by Morgan.

After a very short time, Peter realizes his mistake in divorcing his wife and marrying Stanley. He becomes so miserable that he is forced to commit suicide.

In the meantime Roy and Craig, brought closer by their mutual unhappiness, fall in love. Stanley, after a very brief period of grief, returns home and loses no time in plunging the entire household into a state of anxiety by her newest inconsiderate acts.

"My Gal Sal" tells the romantic story of Paul Dresser, famous American composer whose hit tunes included "My Gal Sal" and "On the Banks of the Wabash."

Harding Nine Triumphs in State Tournament Debu

Kay Limits Middletown Team To Five Hits As Prexies Win 5 to 3.

Marion Harding waded to the semi-final round of the state Class A baseball tournament at Columbus as a result of its 5-3 victory over Middletown in an opening round contest yesterday at Ohio State university in Columbus.

The Harding nine was slated to meet Greenfield McClain at 2 p. m. today on the university freshmen diamond. Should the Presidents survive the semi-final round, they would meet the winner of the Tiltonville-Columbus North game in the state championship match at 4:30.

Don Kay on the mound for the victors was supreme in holding the powerful team to five scattered singles. He gave up two free passes and gained eight. His opponent, Harold Lee, issued only one pass and struck out six.

Leroy Harvey handled the catching chores in exceptionally brilliant style, playing errorless ball. He was the leading Harding batsmen with two hits in four trips to the plate. Cleary's double in the second inning was the only extra-base hit.

Coach Williams planned to start Charles Bowers on the mound in the semi-final game today. Provided they went into the finals, Coach Williams was expected to name Kay. Bowers normally plays shortstop. Last week in the sectional finals he hurled one-hit ball as Harding downed Toledo Libbey 10-0.

Following is a play-by-play account of the game:

First Inning

MIDDLETOWN—Bailey walked. Kay tossed out Boetan and Long fanned. Wells singled to left field, Bailey scoring. Smith was hit by a pitched ball and took first, advancing Wells to second. Lee flied out to Jenkins. ONE RUN, ONE HIT.

HARDING — Jenkins fanned. Garver was out, Boetan to Lee. Harvey singled to left center. Bowers fanned. NO RUNS, ONE HIT.

Second Inning

MIDDLETOWN — Boxwell, Wendt and Payne fanned. NO RUNS, NO HITS.

HARDING — Cleary doubled to left field. Ruhl singled to left field, sending Cleary to third. Gruber and Klingenberger fanned. Kay popped out to Boetan. NO RUNS, TWO HITS.

Third Inning

Cleveland Set for Its First Saturday Night Gan

INDIANAPOLIS LOSES AGAIN AS BREWERS GO WILD IN NINTH

Kansas City Is Spanked by Louisville; Toledo Wins from Minneapolis.

By The Associated Press

Manager Gabby Hartnett has shuffled his Indianapolis lineup almost as often as he has a deck of cards, but has yet to find an ace in the hole to pull his lads out of a slump which now is stretched to seven straight losses.

The Tribe went into the cellar the hard way last night, holding the baffling Milwaukee Brewers in tow until the last inning. Then the Brewers exploded in typical fashion for six runs and a 7-3 verdict.

It was Milwaukee's 21st win in 30 starts and pushed the club a game and a half ahead of Kansas City, which was spilled by Louisville, 5-3.

Toledo's rookie right-hander, Fred Sanford, spaced nine hits as the Mud Hens snapped a six-game Minneapolis winning streak with a 7-1 victory. St. Paul's game at Columbus was postponed.

Williams, Once A 1-A Appealer, Is Signed for Navy

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, May 23 — Ted Williams, the Boston Red Sox' slugging outfielder who was the object of harsh criticism from baseball fandom when he appealed his 1-A draft classification last winter, has been accepted for enlistment as a seaman, second class in the U. S. Navy.

The elongated Ted, who led the American league hitters with an amazing .406 average last season, had kept his application secret during Boston's last swing through the west—apparently afraid he might not pass the navy's stiff examinations.

Man Seriously Hurt By Tractor at Sycamore

Special to The Star

SYCAMORE, May 23—Franklin Kramer, 23, was seriously injured Thursday when the tractor which he was driving overturned on him, breaking a hip, one leg and causing other injuries. The accident occurred on the Merle Vance farm just east of town when Kramer, his brother-in-law, Noble Kirby and Paul Jones and some other young men were operating the tractor in the Vance barnyard. In turning the wheel brakes were said to have locked, upsetting the machine. Kirby was able to pull his brother-in-law from under the tractor. A brother, George Kramer and family occupy the Vance farm house.

Kramer was taken to Mercy hospital in Tiffin in the Moore ambulance and was placed in a cast. He, his wife, the former Bessie Kirby and small daughter have been living at the Minor Kirby home for several months. He had been doing farm work during a temporary shut down of the factory where he had been employed in Indiana.

Ohio Schoolboy Sports To End Today

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., May 23—The chips were down today, and 1,000 Ohio high school athletes were set to battle it out for the state's scholastic championships in golf, tennis, baseball and track-field. The entrants are the survivors of more than 20,000 who started down the county-district-state tournament trail several weeks ago.

Baseball and golf were almost at the halfway mark, despite postponement of a portion of yesterday's preliminary program. The tennis squads were to see their first action during the morning, and a Sunday session was expected to wind up the affairs of court.

Track Set

Track-field, the No. 1 event on the four-play show, was due for decision today in both Class A and Class B, regardless of the weather. Events will be scored on a 6-4-3-2-1 basis, the winner getting six points.

Preliminaries were run off in five Class A and five Class B track events yesterday. In the big league defending champion Cleveland East Tech qualified four men and Springfield's snarling Wildcats five.

Xenia O. S. & S. O. Home Class B king of the cinders the last two campaigns, qualified only one man in the dashes and hurdles—in which the cadets won three firsts in 1941—but the Greene county boys still were favored to reign again since most of their present strength is in the field and distance competitions.

Sylvania Leads

Sylvania was out front in the golf competition by five strokes at the halfway mark, the defending champion Upper Arlington quartet skidding to a three-way sixth-place tie with 351, nine strokes off the pace. Pete Sehl, defending individual champ from Upper Arlington, had a chance to retain his laurels, however, as he was tied with John Zoller of Hamilton Public for medal honors with 78, two ahead of the pack and six over par.

Closest behind Sylvania were Worthington and Tiltonville with 350, while Youngstown Rayen and North College Hill, the pre-tourney favorite, had 352 each. Lima South and Hamilton Public were deadlocked with Upper Arlington. Back of them came Mansfield 356, Toledo Devilbiss 361, Dayton Fairview 369, Shaker Heights 371, Dayton Oakwood 380, Canton McKinley 380, Logan, 389, Elyria 391, and Gallipolis 409.

Class B Baseball

The lower-bracket Class B baseball team reaching the finals must play three games today. Yorkville, Chardon, Columbus St. Charles and Webster township not getting into action yesterday. Still in the Class A scrap, with semi-finals slated this afternoon, were Marion Harding vs. Greenfield McClain, and Tiltonville vs. Columbus North.

Reading and Vaughnsville, winners of yesterday's Class B contests, meet at noon for a finals berth opposite the ultimate winner among the lower bracket quartet.

The track program calls for 14 events in each class. Baseball titles are decided in each division, too, but the golf and tennis competition is wide open, no distinction being made between the small and large schools.

Ted Williams, Red Sox star and baseball's leading slugger, is pictured at the Boston Naval recruiting station phoning his mother after enlisting in the naval air corps as a second class seaman. MAURIELLO WINS DRAW DECISION IN MATCH WITH PASTOR

Crowd and Sports Writers Think Bob Won Tilt; 11,327 Look On.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, May 23 — The understatement of the year would be to say today that the look on Joe Louis' face was one of simple surprise when he heard the announcement that gave Tami Mauriello a draw with Bob Pastor.

And since Promoter Mike Jacobs felt the same way, Uncle Mike said today he "didn't see why" the outcome of last night's ten-round thriller in Madison Square Garden "should change whatever plans are in the making" for a late-June or early-July tussle between Rapid Robert and the Bomber.

Of course, everything still hinged on whether Uncle Sam's army would give Mike and Private Joe the green light for that fight. If the okay comes along, Mike indicated he would go ahead, despite what happened last night. The chances are the fight will go to Cleveland or Chicago, instead of New York, with the Ohio City in front just now.

Those at ringside last night came pretty close to being unanimous that Pastor had whipped Mauriello, in spite of the Fordham flailer's fast start, and a finish in which he and Bob stood head to head and banged away for minutes at a time. A crowd of 11,327 customers chipped in to a gross pot of $22,972.

Of 25 boxing writers polled, 22 thought Pastor won, two agreed with the draw decision and one believed Mauriello finished on top. This corner gave Pastor six rounds, Mauriello two and called two even.

The officials called it a draw, though, and that's what counts.

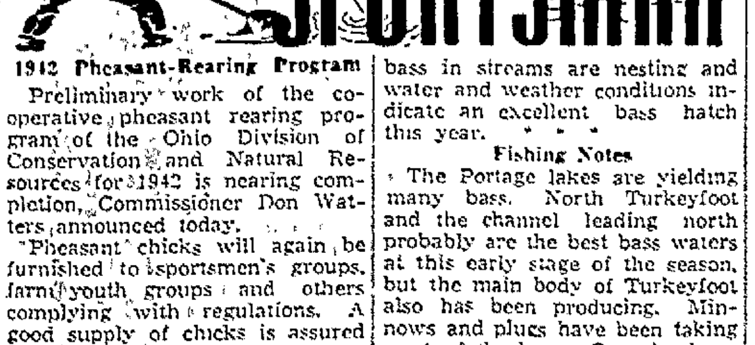
HAWKS TO ENTERTAIN FOSTORIA RED FLARES

Joe Roseberry on Mound as Locals Seek First Win.

Manager Ray Roseberry today named Joe Roseberry, his son who was recently released by the Washington, Pa., Red Birds of the Class D Pennsylvania State association, to hurl against the Fostoria Red Flares in an Ohio State semi-pro league encounter Sunday at Lincoln park. The game is slated to begin at 3 p. m.

The Hawks have dropped three straight decisions so far this season, losing two to the Galion Jaycees by scores of 8-3 and 15-9 and one to Tiffin by a 7-6 margin. The second game with the Tiffin Mud Hens was rained out here Wednesday along with the two other league games. The postponed game will be played as part of a double-header, date of which will be set later.

The Red Flares defeated Galion 11-2 last Sunday for their first win. Previously they were defeated twice by Findlay.



1942 Pheasant-Rearing Program

Preliminary work of the co-operative pheasant rearing program of the Ohio Division of Conservation and Natural Resources for 1942 is nearing completion, Commissioner Don Watters announced today.

"Pheasant" chicks will again be furnished to sportsmen's groups, farm youth groups and others complying with regulations. A good supply of chicks is assured and application forms can now be obtained from local game protectors or game management agents.

Pheasants will be delivered to cooperating persons at the age of four weeks.

Those interested in the pheasant-rearing project should first obtain and carefully study Bulletin 202, "Cooperative Pheasant-Rearing Project". This bulletin may be obtained from local game protectors or game management agents, from the district conservation officer or by writing Hayden Olds, state office building, Columbus.

Bass Season Closes

The open season on black bass in the inland fishing district of Ohio closed May 1 and will remain closed until June 16. The ban applies to large-mouth, small mouth and spotted bass.

The closed season is enforced to permit bass opportunity to spawn. The open season on black bass in the Lake Erie fishing district will close on May 25 and remain closed until July 1. The ban on black bass does not apply to white and rock bass which are different species.

Fish management men report bass in streams are nesting and water and weather conditions indicate an excellent bass hatch this year.

Fishing Notes

The Portage lakes are yielding many bass. North Turkeyfoot and the channel leading north probably are the best bass waters at this early stage of the season, but the main body of Turkeyfoot also has been producing. Minnows and plugs have been taking most of the bass. Crappies have been taken on small minnows at many points on the chain and a few bluegills have been caught, most of them on wet flies.

Always popular in the spring, Wingfoot lake near the Portage lakes, so far has been best for bluegills and crappies with catfish biting fairly well in spots and some bass reported. Crappies, bluegills and catfish have been furnishing more sport than the bass at Springfield Lake near Akron.

Lake Loramie with its 1,500 acres of fishing water and its 38 miles of almost uninhabited shoreline, is yielding fine catches of yellow-belly catfish right now! This natural fishing point is centered in the rich farming district of Shelby county. It is a paradise for many types of fish and its many stumps, cat-tails, lilies offer fine food sources for large-mouth bass, crappies, catfish and bullheads. Most of the catfish are being taken off Smeeders and Pleasure island. Some crappies have been striking off Crawford island. Night crawlers are used to lure catfish and minnows are best at this time for crappies, although some crappies have been taken on crawlers.

Delay Caused by Rain Piles Up T Games on Tribe in 24 Hours.

By The Associated Press

The first Saturday night game in Cleveland Indians' history probably will be played tonight.

Vice President Roger Peckinpaugh wasn't happy about it either, because the battle will add to the Indians' burdened schedule, by making them play three games in 24 hours. And in the next nine days the schedule calls for 13 contests.

Peckinpaugh had little choice after the weather caused postponement of the Tribe's first floodlight game yesterday. Usually night games are confined to weekdays, but today was an open date and the vice president explained. "We couldn't do anything else but play tonight, unless we wanted to put the game off until September." The Tribe has another Saturday night game scheduled Aug 15.

Diz Dean To Dust Off His Pitching Arm at Chicago

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 23 — Dizzy Dean and his million dollar arm will come out of retirement tomorrow to pitch a couple innings—or less—against Satchel Paige in Wrigley Field.

The great one, bought by the Cubs from the St. Louis Cardinals in 1938 for $185,000 in cash, will be supported by speedballer Bob Feller and John Grodzicki. Feller, former Cleveland ace, will come from the Newport, R. I., naval base, and Grodzicki, former Columbus Red Bird flinger, will report from Fort Knox, Ky.

The game will pit the Dean All-Stars consisting of former major and minor leaguers, most of whom now are in the armed forces, against Paige's all-Negro contingent of Kansas City Monarchs. The only contribution guaranteed for a fund is Feller's game salary which he will donate to naval relief.

Some of the activities conducted free-of-charge by the Y include the grade school basketball league, Gray-Y clubs, "learn to swim" campaigns, marbles and jacks tournaments, softball leagues, hobbies, handicraft shop, kite flying contests, recreation ball, free membership for deserving boys, Sunday School classes, use of the Y for colored Boys, adult education classes, a directory of furnished rooms and employment service.

Quiet Wool Market Reported by Bulletin

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, May 23—The Commercial Bulletin reported today:

"Added to the fact that the mills have sufficient wool in hand for immediate needs, the action of the OPA in imposing the price bases inherent in the general maximum price regulation, retroactively, upon current contracts with the wool manufacturers has thrown a further element of uncertainty into the wool market, which has resulted in a quiet market again this week.

"In the country, there has been little done except for the purchase of some freakishly light shrinking clips in Texas and some wool in Wyoming at prices which seem a bit lower. Asking prices in the bright medium sections have been lowered a cent to two cents.

"Foreign markets are hardly changed, except that shipping conditions at the river plate and in New Zealand are a bit easier.

"Mohair is still exceedingly quiet, with prices nominally unchanged."

The paper published these Ohio quotations:

Domestic fleeces—Delaine unwashed 45-48; ½ blood combing 45-47; ⅜ blood combing 51-52; ¼ blood combing 51-52.

they are not much interested in the politicians who did not or would not see what was coming. And as the President takes the decisions which mobilize the country, as he breaks the bottlenecks and removes the obstructions and gently pushes aside the dead wood, they remember, in the light of his growing successes, the fact that on the greatest issues he saw more clearly than his opponents. And so, as of today, he is stronger than he has been at any time since the difficult weeks after Pearl Harbor.

CEILINGS KEEP LIVE HOG PRICES AT $14

Quotations Seem Stabilized at That Point.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 23 (Wide World)—Two months of temporary ceilings on dressed pork, now superseded by permanent maximums, have stabilized the live hog market at an average of about $14 a hundred pounds, livestock men pointed out today.

During the past week average quotations moved about that level, reaching peaks on Friday, but traders do not believe swine can bring much above $14 as long as ceilings are in effect.

Slaughter supplies of live hogs in the May to September period are expected to total 15 to 20 per cent greater than last year, but livestock men believe demand should match supply and prevent any sharp price break. Domestic consumer, lend-lease and military buying combine to give the market strong support.

There is a possibility that in autumn, when the movement of the record 1942 spring pig crop gets underway, there will be some tendency for quotations to sag, traders believe. However, that is several months away and the demand for pork and lard could have expanded even more by that time.

Wholesale pork cuts, after some difficulty in finding their level, have remained unchanged on the Chicago market for more than a month. All cuts are at ceilings.

There has been a pick-up in hog shipments in recent weeks. Producers apparently held back hogs while temporary ceilings were being worked out, presumably hoping that prices would go higher. As it became obvious, however, that ceilings on pork and lard were reflected on live hogs, shipments expanded.

GRAINS MARK UP ADVANCES TODAY

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, May 23 — Gains ranging up to a cent in the wheat and corn pits, more than a cent in rye and as much as 2 cents in soybeans today measured the extent of the additional recovery of cereal prices from recent lows.

Soybeans were strengthened by short covering, demand attributed to processors and reports that shipments of vegetable oils as well as meats and grains to Russia may be expanded. Further shipping business, although not as large as yesterday, helped corn while wheat buying was stimulated by the sharp discount of prices under 1942 loan rates.

Reports from Aviation Front

By BILL BONI
Wide World Military Editor

NEW YORK, May 22 — Three reports from the non-combatant yet every inch war front of the aircraft industry:

The manpower problem — A plan put into operation by the Grumman Aircraft Engineering Corp. might smooth the wrinkles in the brows of a good many harried personnel managers.

Grumman turns out the navy's wildcat fighter with which Lt. Comdr. "Butch" O'Hare knocked down six Japanese bombers; the Avenger torpedo bomber, of which more is destined to be heard but nothing now may be said, and small and large amphibians used on navy and coast guard patrol duty.

That production job, which has turned out more Wildcats in the first four months of 1942 than in all of 1941 and won for Grumman the coveted navy "E" pennant, now requires some 12,000 workers. (Grumman began in 1929, with fewer than 20 employes and an abandoned Long Island garage as its first plant.)

Leon A. (Jake) Swirbul, general manager, and the company are planning in this way, in cooperation with the government, to cope with any transfer of personnel to the armed forces:

Grumman's personnel records are exceptionally thorough. Not only do they know their workers, but also their workers' backgrounds.

So, when a man is drafted, Grumman tries to get a new worker from that man's family. Maybe his kid brother, but more probably his sister or even his mother. For a number of obvious reasons, it can't be made a blanket policy, but it's being done wherever practical.

The system promises to pay dividends two ways—to Grumman and to the armed forces.

The armed forces get a man who isn't beset by worries over his family's security, who knows under what sort of conditions the the bread-winner is working.

Grumman gets a worker to whom the company already is more than merely a name, and who therefore has an added incentive to make good on the job.

Most of the newcomers are women. Counting those in the shops and in the firm's 10 training schools, the plant now employs about 1,000 of them. Like other firms throughout the country in all sorts of war production, Grumman finds them good workers, particularly on routine operations and inspection.

Eventually Swirbul predicts they will make up 30 per cent of the Grumman personnel.

Axing the Axis—Collaboration by the United States state department and U. S. Aviation interests has resulted, according to the June issue in the aeronautical journal "Flying", in virtual elimination of Germany and Italy as factors in the South American commercial aviation field.

An article by Richard Hubler points out that at the start of the war in September, 1939, German and Italian interests operated or dominated about 28,000 miles of airlines in South America. The United States, through Pan American airways and its chief affiliate, Pan-American-Grace, operated slightly more than 18,000 miles.

During the next two years, while U. S. companies increased ownership or operation to 33,500 miles, the axis firms lost control of about 14,000 miles—and since U. S. entry into the war Italian influence has been eliminated altogether and the Nazi firms, chiefly Condor, either have been nationalized, have come under the Pan American wing, or have suspended operations.

Latest figures, compiled since the magazine went to press, show only 5,000 miles of airlines still under minor German influence because they are using unpaid-for German equipment.

Aerial Cargo Ships—U. S. aircraft plants, besides turning out combat planes as fast as they can, also are producing aerial cargo ships in growing numbers in an effort to overcome our slow start in developing this particular type of craft. The need for such planes is underscored each time a U-boat picks off another merchant ship.

The army already is using Douglas and Lockheed transport, among others. Newest to join the line will be the Curtiss C-46, so far as is known the largest twin-engined transport in the world. Now being put through taxiing and ground tests, the C-46 is designed to carry troops, field artillery or even army "peeps".

Based on the design of a commercial transport which was to carry 36 passengers in luxury or 14 in comfort, it can be provisioned for flight to any theater of operations. The first of the series, acquired by the army air forces and then turned over to Britain, recently crossed the Atlantic in 9 hours and 40 minutes.

Deadline Set on 1943 Wheat Applications

Marion county farmers on whose farms no wheat was harvested in 1940, 1941 or 1942 have until June 1 to apply for an allotment for the 1943 harvest, Cecil P. Harper, Marion County Agricultural Conservation association chairman, announced today. It will be impossible to establish allotments for these farms after that date, he said.

Meanwhile, the county committees are establishing allotments for farms on which wheat has been harvested in those three years.

SOME STOCKS TRY RECOVERY

Lack of Buying Support, However, Checks Trend Toward Advance.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, May 23—Selected stocks made idle passes at recovery in today's market without the benefit of much buying support but most leaders lacked progressive tendencies.

News incentives were about as mixed as prices. Trends, indefinite at the start, remained rather foggy at the close. While fractional gains were fairly well distributed among favorites, numerous leaders slipped behind minus signs in the final hour or finished unchanged.

The ticker tape loafed during the greater part of the brief proceedings and transfers of around 125,000 shares were among the smallest since last August.

Dispatches from the Russian-Nazi battle fronts were somewhat conflicting and served to accentuate conservatism in most speculative and investment contingents.

Buying of so-called peace stocks, halted Friday on warnings from the President and other Washington authorities that the outlook was for a long war, failed to revive although shares companies that might benefit from a lengthy conflict also were apathetic.

Voting by the house ways and means committee of a 25 per cent maximum capital gains tax on assets held more than 15 months was about in line with Wall Street forecasts although viewed as hardly bullish marketwise.

Stocks in front at one time or another included Standard Oil (N. J.), Chesapeake & Ohio, Woolworth, Sears Roebuck, Westinghouse, American Can, Dow Chemical, Du Pont, Union Carbide and Public Service of New Jersey.

Lacking much rising power were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Southern Railway, American Telephone, Anaconda, Caterpillar Tractor, U. S. Rubber preferred, Goodrich, Goodyear, Air Reduction and Philip Morris.

Longevity

THE OLD question of the relative importance of heredity and environment in relation to longevity and disease will probably never be settled by statistics. It is too complicated a problem and too many elements enter into it for that.

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, for instance, has recently published a study from which they conclude that a good environment seems to be of greater weight than long-lived parents in determining the individual's prospect for long life. But it takes a good deal of interpretation of their statistics to work out the conclusion.

Anybody who has lived as long as I have must be pretty well convinced that longevity in parents is the most important factor in the longevity of individuals. But of course, there are exceptions. I know of a number of families in which I know the parents have lived to a very ripe age, but several of the children have died of entirely intercurrent disease. For instance, in one such family one child died of pneumonia and one child died of hemorrhage from an ulcer of the stomach. Three others are still alive and look as if they are going to attain the same age as their parents.

The pneumonia and the hemorrhage were simply accidents on the road of life which have no hereditary implications at all. Certainly nobody inherits pneumonia, and it is very doubtful whether ulcer is hereditary. If these two children who were dead were the only children in the family and you based the conclusion entirely on statistics, you would be forced to conclude that parents who lived over the age of 80 would have children who did not attain the age of 45.

Statistics on Mortality

The Metropolitan statistics show that the lowest mortality in a group of policy holders was recorded for those, both of whose parents were living when the insurance was issued. This group have a mortality which is 12 per cent below the ordinary average. The policy holders who had the highest mortality were those, both of whose parents were dead when the policy was issued.

This would seem to indicate that heredity had a good deal to do with it. But when the groups were examined with respect to the age attained by their parents, there was no relation between that age and the age of death of their children. Of course, there are many reasons why a person whose parents lived until he was old enough to take out a life insurance policy should attain a high age.

Orphanhood has a detrimental and lasting effect on the health of young people. The children in broken families are more poorly housed, fed and clothed and receive less medical attention than other children. More of them are compelled to go to work at young ages and therefore at unskilled jobs.

It is difficult for me to accept the conclusions of the Metropolitan. I have seen too much of the contrary and when you get away from long lines of statistics and actually see families that you know, you are convinced that heredity is the most important factor in longevity.

The difference between the statisitician and a family doctor is the same as that between a man in an airplane, who soars over a community and sees thousands of people from far off, and one who lives in one place and gets to know all the neighbors from the time of birth to the time of death.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

After an Uneventful Trip Back to New York, Madge Finds Her Father Waiting at the Hideaway.

"AND I ALSO will keep quiet," I told Jack, smiling with an effort, for his tragic eyes tugged at my heartstrings and brought back the old sisterly affection I had had for him since our childhood together under my mother's watchful, loving care.

"I'll be right here," he said, turning away. "Please keep the door partly open, so it won't have to be closed more than once."

"I'll be right here," he said, standing erect by the door with his hand upon it. Then I hurried to the front of the car and spoke to Joe, the driver.

"The old man is asleep," I said. "When you start, will you ease the car along so that he will not be jolted? And—we will not try to make time going back. If we are back within three hours it will be all right. But if you have long stretches of smooth road and can better that time without jolting the old man, that will be all right."

"I can do it in three hours if I get stopped by traffic light every mile of the way," he answered cocksurely, but I sensed that he really was not boasting, merely making a statement of which he was completely sure.

"And don't worry about the old man being jolted," he went on. "He'll never know we're starting, and he can sleep all the way as easy as a baby in a crib."

"I knew you could manage it," I told him. "Just as soon as Gus comes back with the sandwiches you may start. I've told Bill to follow us with the other car, and we're going straight back to the corner from which we started this morning."

"Okay," he said. "And will I be glad to get a sandwich!"

"So will I," I told him smiling. "Don't start until you have eaten it."

Then I went back to Jack, who helped me into the seat beside him and very quietly closed the car door.

I put sandwiches, cookies, crackers and a bottle of soft drink away for Professor Diswell, in case he should wake up, then Jack and I proved ourselves almost as good trenchmen as did Gus and Joe in the front seat.

Soon Joe, with infinite care and skill, started the big car, and we rolled away so easily that the old professor, sleeping on the rear seat, was not in the least disturbed or jolted.

From the rear window I saw the big armored car of the gangsters following us, and with a sense of a mission completely accomplished I leaned back in my seat and closed my eyes.

It was after dark, when we reached the street in Greenwich Village from which we had started in the morning.

As we drew up to the curb my father and one of the guards from the hideaway came up to the car.

"Tell me quickly, Margaret, what has happened," he said, "and why you had Dr. Twitchell bring me down here."

"I can't tell you that last thing till I see you alone," I told him. "But Dr. Twitchell's services will be needed. There are six gangsters in that other car, also a New England native and a state trooper who has taken shorthand notes of their conversation. Two of the gangsters are wounded."

Gives Spencer the News

"Your set of petit point covered chairs?" my father asked, his lips quirking into a smile.

"Exactly," I returned, "and the best of it is that we brought them back here without anybody except our helpers knowing what had become of them."

I told him briefly of the telephone messages the gangsters had tried to have us send out, but did not mention the unlisted number at the Lansfield, the discovery of which had so upset me. That must wait until we were alone.

"I gather the messages were not sent out," my father said.

"You gather correctly," I told him, with a flippancy that masked a desire to scream with the sheer tension of frayed nerves.

My father looked at me keenly. "You are all in," he said. "Dr. Twitchell must see you before anybody else. But tell me, who are these men with you? I suppose of them is Professor Diswell. But who is the other?"
